

CLOSE RACES MARK COUNTY PRIMARY DEMOCRATS FAVOR BULKLEY, WHITE

DAY NOMINATED FOR TREASURER OF OHIO IN SURPRISE RESULT

Wet, Dry Fight Seen
Cooper Unopposed,
Leads Ticket

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 13.—That Ohio Democrats, at their state-wide primary election Tuesday, nominated former Congressman Robert J. Bulkley, Cleveland, a wet, as their nominee for United States senator, and designated Joseph T. Ferguson, Lancaster, as their choice for state treasurer, appeared certain early today.

Former State Treasurer Harry S. Day, Sandusky, apparently, has won the Republican nomination for state treasurer by defeating State Treasurer H. Ross Ake, Canton, by a margin of more than 50,000 votes.

The Buckeye State Republicans disposed of the remaining contest in their primary election by re-nominating Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown for a third term. Brown defeated Edward J. Hummel, Cincinnati, by more than 250,000 votes.

The Republicans renominated Governor Myers Y. Cooper, Lieut. Governor John T. Brown, Attorney General Gilbert Bettman and State Supreme Judges Reynolds R. Kinade and James E. Robinson and selected United States Senator Roscoe C. McCulloch, for United States Senator, all without opposition.

The prohibition issue is expected to figure conspicuously in the fall campaign in Ohio as a result of the nominations of Bulkley and McCulloch for the United States senatorial toga.

The Democrats nominated former Lieut. Gov. William G. Pickrel, Dayton, for lieutenant governor; former State Librarian John H. Newman, Columbus, for secretary of state; Attorney M. Ray Allison, Columbus, for attorney general; and Will P. Stephenson, West Union, and Charles H. Hubbell, Cleveland, for state supreme judge, on the basis of returns available at the secretary of state's office.

Unofficial returns from 8,069 of Ohio's 8,987 election precincts, tabulated at the secretary of state's office at 6 o'clock this morning, give White a majority of 47,494 votes over former State Representative Stephen M. Young, Cleveland, for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Bulkley has a lead of 33,581 votes over William W. Durbin, Kenton, his closest competitor for the U. S. senatorial nomination. Ferguson, in the Democratic race for the state treasury, was 20,052 votes ahead of W. V. Goshorn, Gallon.

Pickrel led Herbert R. Cuyler, Cleveland, by 41,173 votes in the Democratic contest for the lieutenant governorship and Allison, the Democratic nominee for attorney general, was 26,738 votes ahead of Samuel Burgert, Cleveland Heights.

Newman had no opposition for the Democratic nomination for secretary of state.

The following tabulation of unofficial returns from Ohio's 8,987 precincts was announced by Secretary of State Brown at 6 a. m.

Republican:
For governor: Myers Y. Cooper, 377,312.
For lieutenant governor: John

BRAND WINS IN 7TH DISTRICT RETURNS SHOW

Urbana Incumbent Defeats Gram For Nomination

Incomplete returns from the nine counties comprising the Seventh Congressional District indicated late Tuesday night that Charles Brand, Urbana, present congressman, had been re-nominated on the Republican ticket over Judge Harry G. Gram, Springfield, by an estimated plurality of 3,500 votes.

With 310 precincts out of 494 reporting unofficial returns, Congressman Brand had received 10,119 votes and Judge Gram, 6,663. These precincts included 120 from Clark County, where Gram led by 1,700 votes. Gram also carried Greene County by a vote of 2,602 to 2,423 and was leading in Clinton County but the Urbana congressman was leading in every other county.

The last available vote on the congressional race by counties follows:

County	Brand	Gram
Clark	3,519	5,227
Greene	2,423	2,602
Champaign	1,551	913
Fayette	1,538	1,105
Warren	1,272	661
Clinton	454	547

TROUBLE OVER WILL DELAYS STEEL CASE WITH THIRD RECESS

Unable To Qualify Executors To Carry On Action

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 13.—Difficulties arising from the will of the late Myron C. Wick, complainant in the suit to enjoin the merger of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company with the Bethlehem Steel Company, today had resulted in the third adjournment of the trial since it began seven weeks ago.

Judge David G. Jenkins, following a conference with attorneys for both sides in the suit, adjourned the trial until next Monday, when one of the witnesses to the Wick will was reported to be on a vacation in Canada.

The Wick will was filed in Mahoning County Probate Court here yesterday, but the hearing to qualify the four executors to continue the merger suit, was postponed until Friday because of the absence of the witness and Wick's two minor children who now are said to be in New York.

Executors named in the will are Mrs. Francis Todd Wick, the widow; the Dollar Savings and Trust Co.; Phillip Wick, a brother, and Webster Todd, Mrs. Wick's brother. The will bequeaths the bulk of the estate to Mrs. Wick.

PRECINCTS HOLD UP RETURNS

FAILURE of two voting precincts to report returns promptly to the board of elections Tuesday night, held up the completed tabulation of Greene County votes until 2 a. m. Wednesday.

The two precincts last to report were Beaver Creek Twp. east precinct and Caesar Creek Twp. When failure of these two precincts to report held up the complete tabulation which the board is required to make to the secretary of state, board members made frantic efforts to reach precinct officials in those districts.

Sleepy citizens were dragged from their beds to telephones and questioned regarding the information, until a complete, unofficial tabulation was received at 2 a. m. Considerable interest hinged on the results in those two precincts because of their effect on the close commission race. Beaver Creek East is C. A. Jacobs' home precinct and the big majority he polled there switched him from second to first place in the race.

HAWKS STARTS NEW ATTEMPT TO SHATTER WEST-EAST RECORD

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 13.—With the exhaust pipe on his 400-horsepower motor spouting a stream of blue flame as his famous airplane roared down the runway of Grand Central Airport, Captain Frank M. Hawks, transcontinental speed flyer took off today at 2:16:27 a. m. (Pacific Standard Time) in an effort to shatter the west-east record held by Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh.

Gaining altitude quickly, Captain Hawks soon had his ship pointed eastward over the San Bernardino valley and disappeared almost before the 200 spectators were aware that he was off on the 2,500-mile flight.

KIDNAPING REPORT REMAINS MYSTERY; REFUSE TO EXPLAIN

St. Louis Couple Is Safe At Home After Wild Rumors

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 13.—Charles Kern, wealthy St. Louis resident, and his wife returned to their home here early today after being reported kidnapped by swindlers yesterday from a railroad train at Defiance, O., according to the St. Louis police.

The Kerns declined to discuss their strange departure from the train at Defiance and disappearance in an automobile with two men who boarded the train at Port Wayne, Ind., which led to a widespread search for them. Their only comment was that they were "home and safe."

The couple left the train while on their way from here to Toledo with a bank draft for $70,000 which Kern told his St. Louis banker, J. H. Powers, was to be used in a real estate transaction.

The police here merely stated that the return of the Kerns had ended the search for them.

Impetus had been given to the search by the belief of Police Chief Gerik and of Powers, the banker, that a supposed group of wealthy Toledo men with whom Kern proposed to deal were in reality a gang of confidence operators. Both had sought to dissuade the couple from making the trip.

When the report reached here that the couple had left the train with apparent strangers at Defiance, it was thought the supposed swindlers, learning that they were suspected, had intercepted the Kerns before they reached Toledo, and might even hold them for ransom.

Three men were reported to have been in the automobile in which the Kerns and the two men from the train left Defiance.

GAZETTE ELECTION PARTY POPULAR AS NEW METHODS USED

New Public Address System Makes "Hit" With Big Crowd

"The most successful election night party ever held here."

That was the verdict of election fans Tuesday night after listening to the election returns furnished by the Gazette through its new Public Address System.

The new system was used for a news broadcast for the first time to give the primary returns and its great volume of sound and clarity of tone, won it instant popularity with a throng of 1,000 or more people who crowded into St. Detroit St. between Main and Second Sts., to hear the returns.

The Public Address System, employed for the first time at the county fair last week, where it was exceedingly popular, consists of a compact sixteen-tube amplifying unit, a mammoth radio receiving set, a regulation radio microphone and an automatic motor-operated phonograph, connected with three high-powered speakers in huge horns. Thus it is a miniature broadcasting station and the editor's office of the Gazette became the studio for its premier here.

The system proved ideal because by merely turning a button, listeners were tuned in on the periodical announcements of state-wide election returns from the office of the secretary of state at Columbus or were switched onto the microphone for information on the local returns tabulated in the Gazette editorial rooms. Between announcements musical radio programs furnished entertainment for the crowd. Local announcements were made by William King, Gazette advertising manager.

The satisfactory method of giving the returns, kept a huge crowd entertained all evening and combined with the close races that resulted, kept a number of the hardier fans in front of the Gazette Bldg., until 2 a. m. when the Gazette signed off in the belief the election board would be unable to provide additional returns. Since election night crowds usually broke up much earlier, the persistence of the fans was taken as an indication of the popularity of the new methods of giving returns. The system will be employed for future news broadcasts.

CRESWELL, JACOBS, WILLIAMSON, WOLF, BAUGHN ARE VICTORS

McCallister Nominee For Prosecutor And Van Pelt Wins Treasury Race; Heavy Vote Cast; Voters Favor Gram Over Brand

Recording a moderately heavy primary vote Tuesday, the Greene County electorate selected these nominees on the Republican ticket for state representative and county offices at the November election on the face of complete unofficial returns from all of the forty-eight precincts:

Re-nominated R. D. Williamson for representative in the General Assembly; nominated C. A. Jacobs for county commissioner, Paul H. Creswell for auditor, Attorney Marcus McCallister for prosecuting attorney, John Baughn for sheriff, Leroy Wolf for recorder and Harold M. Van Pelt for treasurer.

In one of the principal contests of local interest from the Republican standpoint, R. D. Williamson, present state representative and veteran politician, was re-nominated for another term in a three-cornered race with a plurality of nearly 1,500 votes over his nearest opponent. Williamson polled 3,012 votes. Fred M. Ervin, Xenia grain dealer, ran second with 1,517 and Mrs. Carrie H. Flatter, president of the Greene County Women's Christian Temperance Union, was third with 1,046.

The closest race in contests for the nomination for county offices developed in the three-cornered fight for the one vacancy on the board of county commissioners, resulting in a victory for C. A. Jacobs, well-known Beaver Creek Twp. farmer, and defeat for Herman W. Eavey, incumbent, seeking another term, and John A. North, Xenia plumbing contractor and former commissioner.

With the race narrowing down to Jacobs and North the outcome was problematical until returns from the last two precincts were received about 2 a. m. Both were running neck and neck but the vote of Beaver Creek Twp. East precinct, Jacobs' home precinct, gave him a substantial majority and enabled him to win the nomination by a margin of 161 votes. Jacobs received 2,328 votes; North, 2,167 and Eavey, 1,410.

An unsuccessful candidate for the office four years ago staged a comeback when John Baughn, village marshal of Jamestown and former deputy sheriff under Morris Sharp, defeated George F. Sugden, present chief deputy sheriff, for the nomination for sheriff. Baughn's plurality was more than 650 votes, the vote being: Baughn, 3,287; Sugden, 2,629.

Poling 3,332 votes, more than any other local candidate for office, Paul H. Creswell, at present serving an appointive term as county auditor, was nominated for his first elective term over George H. Eckerle, head of the Eckerle Printing Co., by a 562 vote majority. Eckerle, who was defeated four years ago, received 2,470 votes. Creswell was nominated for both the long and short term.

In a contest that started out to be close but eventually became one-sided, Attorney Marcus McCallister, Xenia, one of the youngest members of the Greene County bar and son of W. B. McCallister, former sheriff, triumphed over Attorney James P. Kyle, Xenia, for the nomination for prosecuting attorney. McCallister's margin of victory was nearly 900 votes. He received 3,194 votes as compared with 2,308 obtained by his opponent.

Voters turned down the request of B. F. Thomas, present county recorder, for another term, and nominated Leroy Wolf, Xenia, former railroad engineer, for that

HOUSEWORK? BUNK!

New Beauty Queen Says Cooking Not In Her Line
—Plans Stage Career

DOROTHY DELL GOFF

By Central Press
NEW ORLEANS, La., Aug. 13.—Believe it or not, there has finally appeared a "Miss United States" who doesn't "just love housework."

For the first time in the history of the national and international beauty contests one winner is honest enough to say that washing dishes gives her a great big pain and that cooking is something she despises.

Dorothy Dell Goff—"Dot" in her New Orleans home—crowned "Miss United States" at the Galveston International Pageant of Pulchritude, and subsequently proclaimed by the judges as "Miss Universe," tells the world in no unambiguous words that housework is not in her line and that a career on the stage is her one ambition.

Has Ambitions
"I want to be like Marie Dressler," she said shortly after the crown of beauty had been placed on her golden curls, "and that's my one goal in life."

"Cook?" she repeated. "Not I, I hate it like nobody's business." The 122-pound golden-curl 17-year-old from the Crescent City has been winning beauty contests since she was 13 months old, so

Mrs. Adelaide Skinner, a former resident of Xenia, who now resides four miles east of Bellbrook, was arrested in Dayton Tuesday afternoon on a charge of shoplifting. She is said to have confessed to having shoplifted in seven different stores and when taken into custody a quantity of wearing apparel, said to have been stolen from a Dayton department store, was confiscated.

The arrest was made as Mrs. Skinner was stepping into an automobile at Fourth and Main Sts. She was to be arraigned in the Dayton police court Wednesday morning to answer charges of petit larceny.

National Farm Outlook

By ARTHUR H. JENKINS
Editor, The Farm Journal
Written for Central Press

From the things I read in the newspapers it is plain that many people still do not grasp the difference between a co-operative selling organization and a stabilization corporation.

Probably a great many people do not care either. But for those who do take some interest in the farm situation, it is really important to understand how unlike these two kinds of organizations are.

Perhaps I ought to say, first, that neither one of them is the same as the federal farm board, and neither of them is the government. People use words very loosely, as a rule, but to say "the government is holding 69,000,000 bushels of wheat," as I read in a newspaper the other day, is beyond all bounds of loose language.

The government has nothing to do with the wheat trade except to advance money to the farm board. The farm board does nothing except give advice and lend money.

Neither of them buys, sells, owns or holds wheat or any other commodity whatever.

A co-operative selling organization takes the wheat of its own members, or the cotton, or whatever it is, and sells it the best way it can. Its sole function is to sell. And in any normal year it sells every bushel or bale that is turned over to it, to somebody at some price. It should finish up each crop year with nothing on hand unsold.

The stabilization corporation, on the other hand, is a new kind of agency, the purpose of which is to stabilize prices by buying when there is too much of something for sale, holding it as long as necessary, and selling it when the market calls for it.

This last season, for example, the grain co-operative found it could not sell some of its wheat at advantage in the market. The wheat stabilization corporation thereupon bought this surplus, letting the co-operative out. And this is the 69,000,000 bushels that now are being held off the market.

It is perfectly plain to anyone with an ounce of economic sense that this process can go only so far. Stabilization will work nicely on small seasonal surpluses and shortages.

But where there are no shortages at all, here or anywhere else in the world, that is a very different matter. It would be absurd to expect the stabilization corporation to take 69,000,000 bushels of wheat this year, add 75,000,000 bushels next year, 100,000,000 more the year after that, and so on. Yet this is exactly what would happen if the world surpluses should continue, and the corporation should keep on buying.

There is not that much money in the treasury, nor that much storage space in the country. It is too ridiculous to talk about.

If it were possible to get hold of 200,000,000 bushels of wheat and 3,000,000 bales of cotton, put them in a pile, burn them to ashes, and assess every wheat and cotton grower pro rata to cover the loss, that would very likely be the most intelligent plan of all.

It is a pity it can't be done.

Star Gazing

By Central Press
HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 77.—Forty miles from Hollywood, lies Malibu Beach, the exclusive playground of the film elite. It is here on this isolated strip of sand that the kings and queens of film discard their royal raiments for coats of tan and their studio toilets for informal playtime.

Since an invitation to Malibu is almost as rare as the Kohlnar diamond, you can imagine how honored L. was when John Boles and his wife, Marcelite, asked me to spend the day with them at the lovely, new bungalow they have just purchased from Con Conrad. And if you don't think I accepted Johnny-on-the-spot, you're crazy.

Three short years ago there were only some twenty-odd cottages at Malibu, but today there are 107 cottages along a mere one-mile strip. Although usually the prospect of a hike would send me into solitary seclusion, yet, when John suggested that we take a stroll along the beach after lunch, I grabbed my seven-mile boots, and Presto! I was off with him.

The Boles' next-door neighbor is Lois Moran, but Lois has rented her cottage this year because her non-stop activity at the studio has allowed her no time for forty-mile commuting. So, instead of seeing Lois, her charming mother Gladys and her little adopted sister Betty, as I always have in my past visits to Malibu, I had to content myself with a surreptitious peep at Louise Brooks, who is the new tenant of "Halkalani," Lois' "Happy Land-ing."

Sneaking close to "Halkalani" is "Beau Geste," Ronald Coleman's summer retreat. Ronnie running to his usual form, was nowhere to be seen in the front of the house, but was off in the back somewhere, highly involved in an exciting game of tennis.

These reductions are made because in the winter the factory will present two new cars which, while changed enough to classify as new models, will remain practically unchanged in appearance, size and design.

The two new cars will have the same type engines used in the cars now offered.

These new prices give you an opportunity to own a big car at small car cost and at a great saving.

Don't miss this opportunity. At their new low prices these cars are the greatest "buys" in the automobile field today.

Mrs. J. R. McCorkell and daughter, Jane Lou, E. Church St., left Wednesday for Cincinnati, to spend the remainder of the week there.

Huston, Mrs. Robert Arthur Kelly and Mrs. Thurman Earley. Guest prizes were presented Mrs. Hays and Mrs. Effie Wiseley, new chief matron at the institution. A four course luncheon was served the guests at tables decorated with summer flowers. Large bouquets of summer flowers were also used about the Messenger home.

Mrs. Messenger's and Miss Bauerle's guest list included a number from out of the city among them being: Mrs. Frank Harford, Mrs. N. T. Pavoy, Mrs. N. H. Fairbanks, Mrs. R. C. Leslie, from Springfield; Mrs. J. M. Fawcett, Yellow Springs; Mrs. Howard Wentz, Columbus; Mrs. Walter L. Tobey, Hamilton; Mrs. Donald Stutson, Mrs. Westhoff, Mrs. C. F. Galbreath, from Dayton and Mrs. J. F. Kimbrough, Wilmington.

MISS NASH HONORED AT LUNCHEON HERE.

In compliment to Miss Pauline Nash, whose marriage to Mr. Clark Eckler will be solemnized Thursday evening, the Misses Marjorie Street and Louise Wood entertained a small company of close friends at the home of Miss Wood, W. Main St. Tuesday afternoon.

A three course luncheon was served the guests at one table, which was decorated in a black and white motif. A profusion of summer flowers was used about the other rooms of the Wood home. An informal social time followed the luncheon and Miss Nash was presented a miscellaneous array of gifts.

Miss Wood's and Miss Street's guest list included: the Misses Pauline Nash, Carolyn Smith, Anna Louise Jones, Elizabeth Bickett, Elizabeth Piper, Mary Ballentine and Helen Miller.

ENTERTAINS BRIDGE CLUB TUESDAY

Mrs. Harold Owens, N. King St., was hostess to members of her bridge club at a luncheon-bridge at her home Tuesday afternoon. Luncheon was served at 1 o'clock and following that three tables were in play during the afternoon.

Mrs. C. E. Wilkin was awarded the high score prize for the afternoon. Mrs. Clarence Stephenson, Detroit, formerly of Xenia, was a guest at the party.

Miss Palma King, Dayton Ave., is the guest of friends in Loveland, O., for two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Tracy, north of Xenia, are announcing the birth of a son at their home early Wednesday morning.

Mrs. John Berger and three children, Chambersburg, Pa., arrived in Xenia Sunday, being called here by the death of Mrs. Berger's uncle, Mr. Ralph Kester. She will remain here for several weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Paul, Cincinnati Ave.

Miss Janet Scott, Evanston, Ill., who assisted Dr. Austin M. Patterson, this city, in special dictionary work the past year, sailed Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Scott, for Europe. Miss Scott will accompany Dr. and Mrs. Patterson to the meeting of the International Union of Chemists to be held at Liege, Belgium.

Mr. David Ross, Newport, R. I., and Mr. and Mrs. James Ross and daughter, Carma Jean, Detroit, Mich., spent the week end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Mitchell, near Cedarville. They were enroute to Welsh, W. Va., where they will spend two weeks with relatives and friends. Miss Lois Mitchell, Cedarville, accompanied them to West Virginia.

THE OLD HOME TOWN

Members of the Greene family will hold their eighteenth annual reunion August 17 at the Greene County Fairgrounds. All families are asked to bring a basket dinner, ice cream and coffee to be furnished by the committee. Dinner will be served at 12 o'clock.

The annual Conklin family reunion will be held Wednesday, August 20 at Shawnee Park in Xenia. All members and friends of the family are invited to attend and are asked to bring well-filled baskets for the picnic dinner to be served at noon.

Gallows St. The meeting will open at 10:30 a. m. and reports of the year's work will be given. Members will respond to roll call by answering "Why I Am a White Ribboner." A covered dish luncheon will be served at noon with members of the losing side in the recent point contest acting as hostesses.

Marjorie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elroy Johnson, 525 S. Monroe St., was operated upon Wednesday morning for the removal of her tonsils.

Miss Eleanor Maxey, Chestnut St., submitted to an operation Tuesday for the removal of her tonsils.

Jack Spencer, 17, son of Mr. Harry Spencer, Jasper Ave., is suffering from a badly lacerated thumb on his left hand received Wednesday morning when a tire he was repairing "blew out."

Bobby Lighthiser, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Lighthiser, Hill St., underwent an operation Wednesday morning at the office of a local physician for the removal of his tonsils.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carroll and daughter, Margaret, E. Market St., left Tuesday night for a trip through the East. They expect to be gone two weeks and will visit New York City, Washington, D. C. and Atlantic City.

Elouise, small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Beatty, S. Detroit St., who has been ill for several days, is now improving nicely.

Dr. J. A. Yoder will return to his office Thursday after being confined to his home on N. Gallows St., for several days because of an injured ankle.

KIWANIANS ENJOY STEAK ROAST HERE

Thirty-one members of the Xenia Kiwanis Club enjoyed a steak roast Tuesday evening at the picnic grounds of the Xenia Country Club. Following the supper Charles A. Bone gave a report of the national convention of Kiwanis Clubs, at Atlantic City, which he attended a few weeks ago. J. Kenneth Williamson, Palm Beach, Fla., who was the first president of the Xenia Kiwanis Club when it was organized, was present and gave a short talk to members.

JURY DECLINES TO INDICT CARROLL ON CHARGES

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—The grand jury dismissed the charges of obscenity lodged against Earl Carroll, Faith Bacon and several others as a result of the production here of Carroll's revue, the "Vanities." The grand jurors held that the evidence against the defendants did not warrant an indictment.

Besides Carroll and Miss Bacon the other defendants were May Carroll, a chorus girl and Jimmy Savvo, comedian.

The police raided the show several weeks ago following a complaint made by Police Captain James Coy, who declared that Miss Bacon performed a dance while nude, except for two fans. He also claimed that a dressing scene in which Savvo dressed and undressed a chorus girl was in violation of public decency.

Earl Carroll told the jury that he had eliminated the two objectionable scenes from the show and said that as a consequence he saw no legitimate action for further complaint.

Following the dismissal Carroll said: "I am very happy that the grand jury allowed us to appear before them to tell our side of the case. Naturally the dismissal makes us feel that we have secured the vindication we hoped and prayed for."

Incidentally, Carroll stated that the scenes that resulted in his arrest would not be returned to the show.

Both Miss Bacon and Carroll were all smiles when the jury's decision was announced and plainly showed their jubilation.

COMMITTEE PLACES BRING NO FACTIONAL FIGHTS THIS YEAR

For the first time in thirty years there was no factional contest between the two rival Republican groups in Greene County at the primary election Tuesday for the twenty-four places on the Greene County Republican Central Committee.

The make-up of the committee will be about evenly split between the two groups.

Twenty-two of the committee places were uncontested and the two contests which did materialize were purely of local nature, the candidates not having the sponsorship of either local political organization.

The two contests which developed were among individuals in Yellow Springs village and Beaver Creek Twp.

George A. Donley, son of Thomas Donley, former mayor of Yellow Springs, defeated D. H. Fittz, present village mayor, for a committee place by a vote of 160 to 134. The vote in the west precinct of the village was: Donley, 103; Fittz, 62; east precinct—Donley, 57; Fittz, 72.

In the other contest in Beaver Creek Twp., which arose over township school affairs, John H. Munger defeated Lester J. Shoup, 237 to 172. The vote in the three precincts was: Beaver middle—Munger, 93; Shoup, 45; Beaver east—Munger, 127; Shoup, 73; Beaver west—Munger, 67; Shoup, 54.

There were no contests, as far as could be learned, for places on the Democratic county central committee.

PRIMARY VOTE HERE TUESDAY BELIEVED HEAVIEST IN YEARS

That the Greene County electorate cast the heaviest primary vote in a number of years Tuesday is the opinion of Earl Short, clerk of the board of elections.

Mr. Short based his conclusions on the fact the election board found it necessary to send extra ballots to a number of precincts in different parts of the county over and above the supply allotted to these precincts.

Greater interest than usual was manifested in Beaver Creek Twp. because of the candidacy of C. A. Jacobs, prominent farmer of the township, for county commissioner. The election board sent 100 extra ballots to the east precinct in this township and a few extra ballots to the middle precinct.

Xenia precinct No. 1 used 100 extra ballots and the second precinct in Xenia city also used a few more than its original allotment, as did the southwest Xenia Twp. precinct.

One precinct in Yellow Springs village and another in Jamestown found their supplies insufficient to meet the demand of voters and borrowed a number of ballots from other precincts in these towns with the consent of the election board.

The board, under the law, will not commence the official tabulation of the primary vote until Wednesday and expects to have it completed sometime Thursday. The unofficial count, however, for all forty-eight precincts was completed early Wednesday.

Figures resurrected by Mr. Short disclosed that 5,611 Republican ballots and 488 Democratic votes were cast at the August primary in 1928 and at the November, 1928 election there were 8,692 Republican and 4,672 Democratic votes recorded.

Tuesday's primary vote was believed to be substantially greater than in August, 1928.

WHEAT SITUATION WILL BE DISCUSSED

J. C. Neff, extension specialist of farm management of Ohio State University, will discuss the "Wheat Situation" at a meeting in the assembly room of the Court House, Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. According to County Agent E. A. Drake, who is making arrangements for the meeting, such questions as factors affecting the price of wheat to the Ohio farmer, situation as to world wheat production, outlook for United States wheat and Ohio wheat will be discussed. According to Drake these and other similar questions are timely at this season. A good attendance is expected.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

NOT SPEECH BUT LIFE—Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven, but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven.—Matthew 7:21.

COUNTRY'S GROWTH

Population of the continental United States for 1930 was announced recently by the census bureau as 122,698,190, an increase of 16,987,570 or 16.1 per cent over 1920.

Adding in the total inhabitants of the possessions and territories of the United States the bureau found the total population of the United States for 1930, was 124,848,664, 17,339,809 or 16.1 per cent over 1920.

Three hundred and twenty years ago the English colonies in America had a total known population of 210; but not until 1790 was the first official census of the United States taken, which showed a population of 3,929,214, with the center of population 23 miles east of Baltimore. Within the next 10 years settlers moving inland from the Atlantic seaboard shifted the center of population 40.6 miles to the west and 0.5 mile to the south. The population did not rise above 10,000,000 until 1830, when it was set at 12,866,020. This was more than 3,000,000 above the figure of 9,638,453 for 1820, and was greater than the increase in any prior decade, although it included no statistics from the territory now occupied by the states of California, Iowa, Minnesota, New Mexico, Oregon, Texas, Utah and Wisconsin.

We are told, according to statistics gathered by Professor E. M. East, of Harvard university, that 150,000,000 persons are born into the world every day and 100,000 die. Professor East has also estimated that the population of the United States will become stationary at 200,000,000 before 2000 A. D. With an increase of only 77,271,127 necessary to bring the nation's population up to this mark, and with the present rate well over 15,000,000 per decade, we are apparently speeding toward this arbitrary goal. Whether we stop there or not is another question. As a nation our population now exceeds that of the whole South American continent and is but approximately 23,000,000 less than that of the continent of Africa. As long as we seem not yet to be faced with a pressing problem of where to put the people it is quite possible that we shall continue to grow for some time to come.

RECLAIMING THE CRIMINAL

Criminal life affects society disastrously and it cannot afford to be indifferent to the criminal. Until recently it was the custom to treat insanity by whipping the patient. Psychiatrists say that the treatment of the criminal has little more rational relationship to the factors involved. There are criminal propensities which in many cases may be cured, but they will never be cured by subjecting the criminal to conditions and surroundings that will feed those propensities.

The law has a two-fold purpose—to protect society and to reclaim the offender. To accomplish this, it is necessary that the causes be discovered—the economic, social, mental, emotional and physical causes—which often combine to create the criminal tendency. To understand these, the psychiatrist and scientist must be given larger opportunities to formulate the needed programs, suppressing and eliminating criminal tendencies.

Public opinion needs to be aroused to the point of putting into effect a program that will turn the offender over to a board authorized to confine him, to study his peculiarities, mental, physical, social and moral and cure him if he can be cured, to retain him in custody as long as he is a menace to society and to release him when serious risk to society from his conduct has disappeared.

The WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

WORK AND A HOBBY

Many will envy Adrian C. Cooke, 90-year-old Chicago man, who has patented 87 inventions and is still at it. He works six days a week and calls inventing his hobby. Happy is the man who finds his work is his hobby. He is sure to make good and he is sure to find self-expression in his job.

ALL NEIGHBORS

A Liverpool preacher, speaking in St. John's Cathedral, New York, tells us the world is so small now that we are all neighbors. Transportation and news communication have done that. It is always more or less difficult to get along with neighbors. We carry a greater responsibility than ever for our behavior now that we all live so close together. In the early days a man could live pretty much by and for himself. It can't be done now.

WHAT'S IT ABOUT?

Dale Jackson, endurance flight wonder, flies from Montreal to New York, 350 miles, in an hour and 55 minutes. And Pennsylvania railroad officials predict a 14-hour electric train between New York and Chicago. What is it all about? What are we going to do when we get there? One wonders if the well known world is going a little crazy.

IN STORAGE

Word from Washington is that President Hoover has sent the White House wine glasses into storage. There may be a difference between throwing things away and putting them in storage. The "noble experiment" of prohibition continues.

EASY LIFE

United Cigar Stores start a 50-cent book-of-the-month plan. Life is so easy now. We get everything done for us. No need of thinking. We even have our books picked out for us. Our food is put up in neat and convenient cans. Our ideas are given to us by pulpits and newspapers. Professional sportsmen furnish our thrills while we sit in the grandstand.

MORE COMFORTS

Speaking of the modern plan of having everything done for us, making life soft for those who have the money, note New York's newest butcher shop experiment. The shop has no butcher. Girls sell meat neatly done up in packages.

TELEPHONES

The United States has upward of 20 million telephones. The rest of the world has but 10 million. Germany comes next to the United States with three million. Wonder how much waste talk goes over those 20,000,000 phones? And what a wonderful thing for the American nervous system if they were all taken out for a year.

REAL HOSPITALITY

Real hospitality is not so much doing things for your guest as it is giving him the feeling that he can do as he pleases, not bothered by your eager suggestions. The good host isn't always out in front.

THE QUESTION BOX

CENTRAL PRESS WASHINGTON BUREAU

Answers to questions of information and fact can be obtained by writing to Central Press Bureau, P. O. Box 126, Washington, D. C., and enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. No answers will be given to marital, medical or legal questions.

Official Agriculture

How large an acreage does it take to constitute a farm? In taking the census anything from three acres up is considered a farm. No tract smaller than this is recorded as a farm unless it produced at least $250 in crops last year.

Radio Signals

What call is used on radios to signify "attention"? The call now in use is C Q, which means "attention." C Q D, which was a distress signal, is no longer in use, having been supplanted by the signal S O S.

Discouraging Ants

How can ants be kept from tables in an infested house? Perhaps the most effective and durable barrier which can be used indoors is a bichloride-of-mercury tape or band. Tape is soaked in a saturated solution of bichloride of mercury and then hung up to dry. It is then placed around the legs of tables, safes, etc., and if it is kept dry will last from six to twelve months. Common lamp-wick one-half inch wide, is ideal for this purpose. Extreme caution is advised in the handling of the bichloride of mercury, as it is very poisonous.

Transatlantic Flights

What was the first airplane to fly from Europe to America? The Bremen, in 1928, was the first to fly from Europe to America, and the Southern Cross the second.

The Old Dominion

Why is Virginia called the Old Dominion? The nickname was taken from early documents, which referred to it as the ancient colony and dominion.

Gold Star Fathers

Will Gold Star Fathers be sent to France? No such action has been taken as yet and none is seriously contemplated at present.

Boulder Dam

What is the nearest large town to the site of the Boulder dam? The dam site is about 30 miles southeast of Las Vegas (Nev.), a town with a population of about 5,500, on the Los Angeles and Salt Lake line of the Union Pacific system.

(NOTE: The following pamphlets may be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin and a large stamped, self-addressed envelope for each, to Central Press Bureau, P. O. Box 126, Washington, D. Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

PUTTING ONE OVER

NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.—Some years ago Eugene Walter wrote a play that found favor in the eyes of a certain producer (now dead), famous for his vulpine tricks. "I'll put the play on for you," said the producer, "but you'll have to change the character of the villain."

"What's the matter with the character?" inquired Gene. "Nothing, except that it's so badly overdrawn it's preposterous. There never was such a character since the world began. In the entire range of human history there never existed such an impossible mixture of viciousness and stupidity. You'll have to re-write the part."

"What are you talking about?" protested the ruffled scribe. "I drew that character from life." "You mean to tell me you actually knew such a man? Who in heaven's name was he?" "Why, that's YOU," said Gene, dodging a cut-glass ink well, as he skidded in the direction of the elevator.

WHAT A MISTAKE!

A collector of "nut" china traveled all over New York looking for an old-fashioned mustache cup, without success. Finally, some one told him of a little hardware and china dealer on Eighth avenue, who hadn't thrown anything away since Dewey took Manila.

The collector sought him out. The dealer was sorry, but he had only one such cup in the place, and it wasn't any good. He'd had it for twenty-five years without being able to sell it. He said:

"You remember when them cups was all stamped, 'Father and Grandpa'? Well, I got a batch o' them—way back in nineteen five. They were all stamped right except this single cup. The manufacturer made a mistake and wrote 'Mother' on it. O' course, nobody wants a mustache cup with 'Mother' stamped on it in big gold letters."

"Oh, I'm not particular," said the collector. "Let me see it."

It was produced—a beauty of its kind.

"How much?" queried the collector.

"Gimme fifteen cents and we'll call it square," said the dealer.

This was acquired the feature of the "nut" collection.

HIS SHIP COMES IN!

HOOVER'S EXPERIENCE IN EAST KEEPS MARINES OUT OF CHINA

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—President Hoover has lived in the far east himself, which doubtless explains why huge naval reinforcements were not ordered immediately to oriental waters upon the latest flareup in chronically smoldering and frequently acutely conflagrant China.

"More marines!" was Secretary of State Kellogg's invariable reaction to such alarms. Not knowing any more about actual conditions in that part of the world than his cabinet chief, President Coolidge let him have his way about it.

As a matter of fact, the Americans in China, can be protected just as well by comparatively a few marines as by ten or a dozen times as many. Those who are scattered hither and yonder over the face of the republic could not be protected by a million.

Anyone who knows Shanghai knows how all the foreigners in China, who live bunched together, are situated. Shanghai is the most important community of them, but the others differ from it very little, except in the number of their alien inhabitants.

The foreign city of Shanghai, then, is built on a narrow strip of land extending along the Whang-poo river, a few miles from its junction with the big Yangtze, about an hour's steaming from the point where the latter empties into the Yellow sea.

American, European and Japanese warships have no difficulty (or not much, crossing Woosung bar, at the Yangtze's mouth) in getting up to the town, and there fifteen or twenty of them lie, from year's end to year's end, about a baseball pitch off the bund, or waterfront.

These craft are obsolete tubs, because there would be no sense in wasting modern men-o-war on such duty, but they can shoot, and their batteries always are in readiness to lay down, all around the settlement, a barrage that no native force possibly could break through.

Wherever there are "foreign cities" in the republic, they are planned on the Shanghai model and stand on similar sites—on the coast or the banks of navigable streams—safely under the guns of a fleet of armor-clad old vessels, but invincible against anything China has to offer.

To be sure, Peking (now Peiping) where the legation staffs were penned up during the Boxer troubles, is in a class by itself—being inland. However, the diplomatic quarter there does not rate as a "foreign city"—nor is it mentioned as in danger at present, or likely to be.

It is true that China's foreigners might find some of their footholds untenable, if their supplies were cut off from the landward. They themselves could get away on shipboard, but perhaps at the cost of abandoning everything they owned to be plundered.

This could hardly happen at a port like Shanghai, which, being close to the ocean, could easily be provisioned from the sea, and probably could withstand a siege indefinitely, as could Tientsin, the former German port of Tsingtau and other coastal settlements.

The hazard at the triple cities of Hankow, Hanyang and Wuchang (on the three land angles formed by the entrance of the River Han into the Yangtze) is much greater—not to the foreigners' lives, unless they were to linger over-long ashore in the face of peril, but to their property.

The white folks' portion of Hankow (Hanyang and Wuchang are factory districts) is a miniature Shanghai, but instead of being only two or three hours' steaming from tidewater, it is nearly 1,000 miles (not quite so far, in a bee-line overland) up the winding Yangtze.

Ocean-going boats do ascend the stream and tie up at the Hankow bund. Rescuing the inhabitants presents no difficult problem, but the place itself is not as defensible as Shanghai. It could be defended, of course, but it would be a large-scale military undertaking.

Changsha's recent fate shows how hard alien colonies, far up Chinese rivers, are to protect. Theoretically it ought to have been possible to safeguard the town from the River Slang, but low water hampered the gunboats so much that the best they could do was to take foreigners off.

As for relieving remote missionary and trading stations, even a vast army could not do it, for it would have to stick together; not scatter in many directions, to take aid to a handful of colonists here and there. The country is too big for one thing—about the size of the United States.

Foreign merchants and diplomatic officials in China unquestionably favor the dispatch of formidable military expeditions of their various nationalities to the revolution-rent republic—and demand them in the name of protection, because they consider that the best excuse.

In reality they are not much afraid; at worst, they could get away if they chose. What they actually want is intervention, with a view to permanent, dependable foreign domination of the whole country, to clinch their own commercial interests.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

By MRS. MARY MORTON

MENU HINT

Creamed Chicken and Peas
Hot Biscuit Fresh Preserves
Riced Potatoes Stuffed Olives
Tomato and Cabbage Salad
Vanilla Ice Cream
with Chocolate Sauce
Coffee

This is a good menu for unexpected "company." The chicken in this instance was canned, and canned peas were used from the emergency shelf. Olives and marshmallow cherries were also used from said shelf. This dinner, therefore, required a minimum of preparation.

Today's Recipes

Chocolate Sauce—One square chocolate, two tablespoons butter, one cup sugar, one-half cup milk or water, one teaspoon vanilla. Melt chocolate and butter. Add sugar and milk. Boil three minutes. When cool add the vanilla. Pour over ice cream and top with a marshmallow cherry.

Suggestions

Cake Layer Holder
Take a strip of paraffin paper or a strip about 15 inches long. After loosening edges of cake turn upside down on the paper. Then the layer may be easily placed on a plate. Turn plate over the cake and lift by the paper. Even the most tender and delicate cake may be handled with safety this way.

Fruit Drop Cookies—One and one-half cups flour, one-half teaspoon salt, one and one-half teaspoons baking powder, one-half cup fat (half butter), three-fourths cup brown sugar, two eggs, well beaten, four tablespoons milk, three-fourths cup sliced dates, one-half cup English or black walnuts, one teaspoon maple, one-half teaspoon vanilla. Sift flour, then measure. Resift with salt and baking powder. Cream butter and sugar thoroughly, add well beaten eggs and continue creaming until smooth and fluffy. Add dry ingredients and milk alternately, beginning and ending with dry ingredients. Add dates, nuts and flavoring with last few stir. Drop by teaspoonfuls on slightly oiled baking sheet. Bake in a hot oven (400 degrees F.) 30 cookies.

A very satisfactory jelly bag may be made by putting a square of outing flannel in the colander and placing the colander over a deep kettle.

Don't try to economize by using last year's jar rubbers, even though they weren't used at all. The rubber has lost its elasticity and will not completely seal the cover, then the food will spoil—all for a few cents' economy.

Dietary Restrictions Responsible

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

The first requirement we put down for any normal diet was enough fuel. This means enough food. The first requirement of a diet concerns the actual amount of food you eat a day.

We pointed out yesterday that the unit of measurement of the fuel value of food is the calorie—you use up one calorie when you perform as much muscular exercise as consists in rising from a sitting position, shutting a door and sitting down again.

You take into the body one calorie when you eat a quarter of a soda cracker.

Now how many calories do you need a day?

Even when you sleep you are using up some calories. The mere act of breathing requires some muscular movements which result in the burning of calories. While asleep or lying quietly you use about half a calorie per pound of body weight in an hour. Of if you weigh 150 pounds—you use 75 calories an hour. This is roughly 1,500 calories in the 24 hours.

Walking, even in the performance of the most ordinary activities, raises this very rapidly. Most of us use at least 3,000 calories a day. A football player or day laborer doubles this again.

I emphasize this question of the basic amount of food required because so much of modern advice on the subject of diet consists in admonitions towards dietary restrictions. Don't get fat. Don't eat too much. That is what everyone is harping on.

Now as a matter of fact as a result of all this talk there are many people in the world who are tired and constantly worn out because they do not have enough to eat. Especially is this true of women whom vanity prompts to attempt to keep a figure far slimmer than their height demands.

Some extremists go even further and advocate starvation cures. One such man led a party of people in to the mountains of Colorado last year to practice starvation for 40 days. Such exploits and ideas are regarded as jokes in some quarters as very sensible ideas in others. They are neither, because they do a great deal of harm and, as in the expedition referred to, lead even to the death of some of the enthusiasts.

There is no such thing as absolute starvation. If food is not taken in by mouth the body attacks its own tissues—fat and flesh—and burns them. Thus a vegetarian who goes on a starvation period is really putting himself on an exclusively meat diet.

For some people of course less food is required than for others. A reduction in the total amount of food consumed by many people is advisable. But the idea can easily be carried to extremes and in our generation there is much more danger of most people "killing too little" than too much food.

Loyalty To Friends Shows Stuff

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

LOYALTY to one's friends when they are in hard luck surely shows the stuff you are made of. They may prove ungrateful, humans being what they are, but what matters it, as long as you know you are true blue?

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I never fail to read your column, and 'Working Juel's' letter interested me immensely. I want to tell her that if she truly loves her man she shouldn't weaken or give him up because he can't take her any where. There are too many girls who claim they love deeply, but when the man becomes down and 'broke' they have no use for him and give him the gate.

"I am also in my teens and have kept steady company with my 'beau' for a whole year, and yet he couldn't take me anywhere because he was down and out, what with being ill, out of work, domestic troubles, and meeting continuous hard knocks, but I never failed him.

"That is just the time to prove your love, Juel, when he needs you. My sweetheart has been man enough to almost beg me to give him up because he thought I might feel tied down or become unhappy, and I knew it would break his heart. It only made me love him the more and see how much he needed me. I'm happy that I didn't give him up, and I'd rather sit beside him for hours than to see the most popular moving picture.

"This has made him happy and urged him on, and I've been happier because of it.

"You can help him in lots of ways. Let him pay for his own shoes and you pay for yours. Try to encourage him and be his inspiration. Show him that you, at least, have faith in him and think him not at fault. Try to understand him and why he isn't able to take you out.

"It is just for him to be jealous of that other boy. Why shouldn't he be? When a man loves he doesn't want to sit by and see someone with an extravagant display take his girl away. Wouldn't you be dreadfully jealous if some girl tried to vamp your sweetie away with a great show of what money could buy?

"Stick to the boy friend, Juel, if you truly love him, and when things go better you'll thank yourself for not being a weakling. Happiness is much more appreciated when hard to get.

WON BY WAITING.
A splendid letter from a fine little girl, dear. Thank you. Many persons older than Juel would do well to heed your message when trouble comes and lovers and husbands need faithful and loving support to meet it.

MARY P.: I should think people could easily verify or disprove the report that your boy friend was married if they wished to do so. Pay no attention to the rumor if you are convinced that it is untrue. From your letter I am sure he sounds like a good honest boy, and I would stick to him until he has those dates speak of paid and can take you about more. I think you are very sensible to postpone marriage until you are a few years older. Glad you enjoy the column.

DAVID'S SWEETHEART: What can I say, dear? I am sorry your parents won't let your little boy friend visit you at home. Personally it seems unwise to me, but they know you better than I do, of course, and they have your wel- fare at heart. Girls in their early teens cannot depend on their love lasting, although occasionally it does. You say you'll do anything I say but you won't give one another up. Then you'll have to go on meeting on the sly, I suppose, but you'll have to be prepared to have your parents find out about it. And then what are you going to do and say?

You Can Buy Hair To Hide Locks

By GLADYS GLAD

It probably has not occurred to most women that long hair is bound to prove quite an expensive proposition.

With long hair, permanent waves will become more necessary. Shampoos will have to be more frequent. Marcel waves will be an added tax on your pocketbook. And hair dressing, being more difficult will also add to your weekly beauty bill.

And will you look as pretty with your long tresses? Well, not on the beach at any rate. And you may find it really difficult to discover a coiffure that will give your head as smart a silhouette as did the short hair.

Undoubtedly long tresses are not meant for the beaches. Hanging limply around the shoulders, long hair is neither attractive nor comfortable. The chic-looking girls who are able to enjoy the cool ocean breezes aren't the ones who have to pile a wad of hair under their bathing cap.

From what I have seen on the beaches, the bathers aren't going in strongly for the long hair fad. And those who are, are buying their long hair and tucking it away in bureau drawers before they set off for a day at the seaside.

A number of people have shorn their hair since the hot weather struck us. The heat takes most of the fervor from hair growing. "Buy your long hair" can be the answer to the problem of the girl or woman who must be fashionable, and yet wishes to be comfortable when swimming, playing tennis, golfing or enjoying any of the outdoor sports.

Short hair is not only more comfortable than long hair, but also lends itself best to styles of individuality. And by the use of extra hair pieces, your bob can be converted into the most artistic of coiffures for afternoon or evening wear. Moreover, it is possible to create many novel and striking coiffures by the use of extra hair pieces.

Regardless of whether there is anything particular at stake, the Downtowners and Geysers, bitter rivals in softball, scrap like a couple of wildcats whenever they play each other. There is probably no rivalry as keen as when these two ancient foes get together and an exciting game invariably results. Each team plays its collective head off to win and rarely is the margin of victory greater than one or two runs.

The Geysers and the Downtowners met four times this season, one being an exhibition tilt, with the nine coming out on top on three occasions. The first game went ten innings with the D. T. C. Club winning, 9 to 8. Geysers evened matters the next time, staving off a rally in the last of the ninth to win, 6 to 5. In a Fourth of July exhibition contest the Downtowners piled up an early lead and beat Geysers, 11 to 7.

The final game was played Monday night and was one for the books, the Downtowners rallying to count three runs in the last of the ninth and win, 11 to 9 in a riot finish. It was a dramatic game if there ever was one and the fans should have gotten their money's worth—even if they didn't pay any admission to see it.

Neither team knew it at the time, but the three runs scored by Geysers in the first half of the eighth inning only tied up the score at 9 to 9, instead of putting them ahead by a one-run margin, as the score-book indicated.

A subsequent check of the box score disclosed the Downtowners had chased seven runs across the plate instead of only six in their big third round. Eleven batters stepped to the plate in this hectic round before the third out was made but the run scored by Jimmie McCurnan was overlooked in the summary.

As it turned out the mistake made no difference in the result because Sam Huston's homer in the last of the ninth drove two runs over the plate ahead of him, more than sufficient to win. It may have been just as well Sam smacked the round-tripper for otherwise had the error been discovered after the game there would have been plenty of arguments.

John "Bunnie" Purdom, manager of the D. T. C. Club team, who seldom plays himself, was the hero of the victory. The Downtowners were shy one player when the game was called so he stationed himself in right field to complete the lineup. Bunnie did not have a fielding chance in the way of fly balls (thank goodness) but he certainly made himself useful at bat. He personally scored three runs, hit a clean single in the third with the bases full and generally made himself troublesome to Geysers, getting on base on two other occasions on errors and once on a fielder's choice.

The manager-player of the Downtowners on one other occasion three years ago came to the rescue of his team in a pinch. It was the last half of the ninth inning of the second game, between the Downtowners and the old Firemen's team with the city title at stake and the Firemen had one-run edge. Runners were on second and third with two outs when Bunnie stepped to the plate in the role of a pinch-hitter. And he delivered in the crisis, lacing one of Lloyd Downey's pitches over third for a hit that scored two runners and gave his team the championship for that season.

The strongest all-star team that could be picked from National League players, if the selections were based on batting power alone, would be as follows: pitcher—Paul Boxwell (.423 average); catcher—Lou McCoy (.365); first baseman—Walter "Speed" Leonard (.551); second baseman—Joe Smittle (.464) or "Happy" Davis (.529); shortstop—Ruse (.409); third baseman—"Bulldog" Smith (.491); center field—"Stoney" Fuller (.454); right field—Bob Yeakley (.425); left field—Bill LeSourd (.421).

(These selections are based on the last batting averages available and we took the liberty of transferring Ruse from third base to shortstop).

Statistics show there are now 25,000 miniature golf courses in the United States representing an investment of $125,000,000. Of this number 15,000 have sprung up since January. The craze is sweeping every part of the country and the popularity of baby golf is growing by leaps and bounds in Xenia and throughout the county.

LANGS BEAT WILMINGTON TEAM BEHIND GIBNEY'S PITCHING

Piling up twenty-three hits and as many runs, the Lang Chevrolet Co. softball team swamped the Irwin Auger Bits of Wilmington, 23 to 4 in a non-league game on the Wilmington diamond Tuesday night. Both teams used ten men and the contest was limited to seven innings.

Scoring in every inning but the fourth, Langs had their big round

JAMESTOWN VICTOR OVER SOUTH SOLON IN CONTEST SUNDAY

With the largest crowd of the season on hand to view the proceedings, the Jamestown Independents defeated South Solon, 4 to 1, in a well-played game on the Leach Park diamond Sunday afternoon. Evans, Jamestown hurler, had rather a shaky start but settled down and held South Solon batters to six hits besides fanning ten men. The Solon nup, which had previously lost only one game this season, escaped a shutout by scoring a run in the fifth, this tally being unearned.

Jamestown marked up a run in the third inning, two more in the seventh and another in the eighth. Bogard, visiting pitcher, was also in fine form, striking out nine batters and allowing only nine hits. He also contributed two of his team's six bingles.

The batting of Gallagher and the fielding of Moorman featured for the winners.

Next Sunday Jamestown and the Xenia Merchants will open a three-game series, all games to be played on the Washington Park diamond here. The second game of the series will not be played, however, until September.

GRAHAM PAINTS AND GALLUPS PLAY TIE; KERSEY HITS HOMER

The Graham Paints and the Gallups, a Wilmington team, battled seven innings in a 1-1 pitchers' duel at Cox Field Tuesday evening in one of the best exhibitions of the softball sport seen here this season.

A home run by Kersey, his second hit of the game, gave the Painters their only score during the pastime, which was abbreviated to seven stanzas by mutual agreement before the game and which would have been interrupted by darkness anyway.

The visitors were only able to collect three hits off the puzzling delivery of Lloyd Downey, Paints' pitcher while singles by Hurst, Haverstick and Kersey, and Kersey's circuit smash, totalled the four hits obtained by the Xenians. The teams played with ten players.

The Paints, anxious to win their National League game with the Lang Chevrolets Friday night, are bemoaning the loss of Milburn, leader and leading hitter, who has moved to Cincinnati.

MUNICIPAL COURT FIGHTER JAILED

As a sequel to what police say was a "fight over a girl," Everett Thoroman, 20, of 25 Maple St., was fined $10 and costs and given a suspended sentence of thirty days in jail by Municipal Judge E. Dawson Smith Tuesday morning when Thoroman pleaded guilty to assaulting Davis Creamer, 22, R. R. No. 8, Xenia. Creamer filed the affidavit against his rival.

GIRL MOTHER SEEKING DIVORCE AT FIFTEEN, LEARNING TO PLAY

SARAH COHEN

BY IONE QUINBY

Central Press Staff Writer

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—Dusky-eyed and her shoulders slightly stooped, Sarah Cohen, 15 years old, who never had a doll in her arms but who sang her own baby to sleep when 12, is being initiated for the first time in her life into the gay pastimes of childhood.

Although she is still waiting for the marriage she went through four years ago, when 11 years old, to be dissolved, and she has a beautiful three-year-old child dependent upon her, the days opening up before her are full of pleasant and interesting things.

School Days

Traipsing to summer school daily where through the kindness of the Persian consul to Chicago, H. Nathan, she is trying to master the language of her adopted land, she is fast becoming an adept at jumping rope and roller skating.

She is learning, too, what fun it is to link arms with other little girls and carry books under arms to school.

Sarah spent her first years on the streets of Jerusalem with barely enough to eat. Her story told to Judge Gentzel through interpreters mirrors a struggle with poverty which threatened to engulf her when she found herself without home and parents in Palestine.

Barred, ragged and hungry, she went finally to a Palestine orphanage, where she remained until one day a man of 30 years offered to give her a good home.

Sarah waved "good-bye" to the orphanage. At last, she believed, she would have a home where perhaps she could have a doll such as she had seen in-shop windows, and pretty bows for her hair. Instead of finding herself an adopted daughter, however, she found after going through a strange ceremony that she was a wife.

Brought to America

Charles R. Cohen, who married her, and from whom she is endeavoring to secure a divorce and money to support her child, brought her to America, where one year later, in California, she cradled a baby in her arms.

In telling the story of her married life, Sarah, who at 15 is just learning the carefree joys of childhood and the happiness of school days, will tell you:

"I had to do all the housework after my marriage, when my husband took me to live with his parents. There were eight in the family. Then he put me to work in his factory. All my life has been all work and no play. Before I went to the orphanage I worked in the fields of Jerusalem for my day's meals. After I was taken to the orphanage I washed dishes, scrubbed floors and worked in the garden. I never had a doll in my life or knew what it was to play."

Her ambition now is to learn some of the pastimes and games of children so that she may be a real playmate for her baby. The husband is manager of a silk undergarment factory in Chicago.

SPLASH

READ THIS FIRST:

Kitty Wilcox, secretary to Ellery Goss, assists Gordon Platt, Goss' confidential man, in running down a "leak" in the office. Atlee makes violent love to Kitty, who flees to Sally Ayers. After meeting Boss Kelliher at a party given by Hilda, blond phone operator, she receives a note asking her to a secret breakfast with Gordon Platt. At Platt's request she gets to know Hilda Bridges, another of Goss' secretaries. At her house she is surprised to see Baby Ayers in company with Mrs. Bridges' bond salesman nephew—evidently there is a connection between Sally Ayers, Bridges and the stock market.

But the "connection" turns out to be harmless. The man is Joe Fortune, of whom Kitty has heard, long in love with Sally. Kitty reproaches herself with too much imagination. But that night, listing all possible suspects of the leak, she determines to be active, not passive in the work for Platt. At midnight she is asked to come to the telephone; she indignantly refuses on hearing that it is Kelliher who wants her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 17

"He said Mr. Kelliher, Miss." Kitty's face hardened. "Please tell him I'm in bed and will not be disturbed."

But she was disturbed, mightily. What could Mr. Kelliher want of her at midnight—or any other time?

Yielding to his self-reproachful pleadings, and mindful of her promise to Sally and Baby, Kitty agreed to spend Saturday afternoon with Atlee. She debated long as to where she would see him; the parlor at the boarding house was unattractive and semi-public, but safe. To go for a ride in his car was private, anything but secure if Atlee again attempted strenuous love making. The natorium seemed to promise a reasonable privacy and assured safety. She agreed to meet him there, but she did not wear her racing suit. She chose a very full skirted woolen suit, feeling a difficult conversation would not be made less so by that too revealing silk covering.

Having made up her mind to hear him, she wasted no time in pretense. He waited for her at the foot of the stairs near which she had stood when the lights went out and he had stolen that first disturbing kiss.

"We can't sit here and talk," she said, simply, pointing to a bench.

"I've lots to say, but I wish I could have a less public place!" he grumbled Atlee. "How do you expect a fellow to go down on his knees and eat humble pie here?"

Kitty drew back, shocked. Was he going to treat his offense as a joke?

"I have no wish to see you on your knees!" She spoke a little tartly. "I did not seek this interview; I promised it to Sally."

"Don't I know it!" he responded, ruefully. "And to Baby! And maybe the small one didn't about take my head off! You sure got me in bad here."

Kitty did not answer. "It's hard to explain!" Atlee floundered. "Of course I had had too much to drink. I didn't know what I was doing. I am just crazy about you. Can't you forgive a fellow?"

He did not look at her. "Why was Baby so cut up about it?" asked Kitty, curiously. "What is Baby to you?"

He grew white, then red, then white again. But his answer was explosive. "Not a thing," he cried, vehemently. "Not a thing in the world. I was just defending me because I'm an old friend."

Kitty looked him straight in the face. His eyes met hers, but they were veiled. "Am I authorized to say that to Baby?" she asked. "That you are nothing to her, she nothing to you?"

He gulped. "Of course!" he answered. "Of course!"

Well that was that. She had no other course than to believe him. But then, why? Why had Baby had hysterics? The "old friend" theory seemed hardly enough to account for her actions.

"Kitty, darling, please forgive me. Honestly, I didn't know what I was doing! I didn't mean to be offensive; I'm just head over heels in love with you, and—and—" He stammered off into silence.

"You are in love with me?" Kitty looked at him wonderingly. Had the man no sense of values? John Spurgeon had asked her to marry him, without a word of love—but she knew he loved her.

"Sure I'm in love with you! I love you to death! I'm crazy about you!"

"Oh, Kitty! What do you want. What can I do?"

Kitty didn't answer. "Are you going to tell Sally—Baby—what I said?" he asked miserably.

"Tell them what you said? Is anything you said a secret?" demanded Kitty, incisively. "Don't you want me to tell them that you asked forgiveness for your incoherent conduct at the Kelliher's?"

"Yes, of course!" he muttered. "But—"

"But you don't want me to tell them you said you were in love with me? Is that it? Or don't you want me to tell Baby you said she was nothing to you?"

Kitty began to enjoy the conversation. She was evidently getting a sweet revenge. Atlee was obviously uncomfortable. Kitty was sore in heart; frank, free, decent, she was not accustomed to being insulted.

"I want you to tell them you have forgiven me!" he muttered. She paused on the steps of Sally's and Baby's home. "You can come up with me, if you like, and hear what I say—"

Atlee pulped, looked at her miserably. Then he gave her the surprise of her life.

"We can sit here and talk."

you! I can't get along without you!"

His voice sounded sincere and his eyes were warm. But they had passed from warmth to white heat before.

"I just don't understand!" Kitty tried to be honest.

"What is there to be understood?" he asked. "You are beautiful enough to make any man fall in love with you! I did, the first time I saw you! You know, I kissed you when the lights went out; then in the taxi—I'm crazy about you. Can't you like me a little?"

Kitty drew away. She had given him every chance. Her heart ached because she had liked and admired him. Hard as it was to admit, she was mistaken! He wanted her kisses, not her faith. The tears came to her eyes. Not to let him see she rose, suddenly, and plunged into the pool. She heard a stifled cry which sounded like a curse. Then he plunged in after her.

But Atlee had no chance of catching her. She outswam him with ease. Not to make it evident to the few others in the great enclosure, she kept only about twenty feet ahead of him. She refused to hear his calls that he wanted to talk to her.

She swam three lengths of the pool, easily eluding him at the turns by diving and under water swimming, then drew herself out, near the high diving stand. As Atlee followed, puffing, Kitty began to climb the ladder. Atlee followed, his face dogged with resolution.

"Better not come up higher than you want to dive off!" she threw over her shoulder. She reached the top of the stand. Atlee still pursued. She waited until his head showed at the top platform, then dropped into the air, arms spread out, legs close, toes pointed back, diving in the beautiful swallow dive that had so thrilled her new friends. As she came to the surface, swam to the side and pulled herself out, Atlee climbed down the ladder. Kitty disappeared up the stairs to the ladies' dressing room. Her tears were gone, but her heart sorrowed.

It was easy to elude Atlee in the pool, but how to avoid him when dressed? He would wait for her in the lobby, of course. He'd probably dress as fast as he could to intercept her. She smiled a little and took her time, keeping him waiting half an hour. When she joined him in the lobby she was quite cool and outwardly indifferent.

But Atlee was not. "Look here!" he cried. "I won't be put off! I've got to have an answer. I've told you I'm sorry. I've apologized for my—my mistake. I've told you I love you. What more can I do?"

"Well, you might take me to Sally's!" smiled Kitty. "But I think we'll wait, if you don't mind!"

He stared. "You don't trust me?" he accused.

"I shan't dispute you."

"Oh, Kitty! What do you want. What can I do?"

Kitty didn't answer. "Are you going to tell Sally—Baby—what I said?" he asked miserably.

"Tell them what you said? Is anything you said a secret?" demanded Kitty, incisively. "Don't you want me to tell them that you asked forgiveness for your incoherent conduct at the Kelliher's?"

DAY NOMINATED FOR TREASURER OF OHIO IN SURPRISE RESULT

torney—Attorney George H. Smith; sheriff—Harry M. Fisher; recorder—R. E. Dunkel; treasurer—Ben Belden; coroner (short and long term)—William E. Jacobs, Xenia.

In the two Republican contests for the nomination for state offices, Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown, asking re-election, defeated his opponent, Edward J. Hummel in Greene County by a more than a nine to one ratio, getting 3,715 votes against 414 for Hummel.

Day a substantial majority in the three-way contest for state treasurer, the vote being: Day, 1,990; Pauline Buckley, 1,289; Ross Ake, 1,101.

In Greene County, as was the case over the state, Democratic voters favored George White, of Marietta, for the gubernatorial nomination over Stephen M. Young, Cleveland, giving White 295 votes and Young, 144.

Robert J. Buckley, Cleveland, who had a commanding plurality over four opponents for the nomination for United States senator, ran third in Greene County, receiving only seventy-seven votes. Chas. V. Truax led with 132, followed by William W. Durbin with 106, Buckley with 77, James McSweeney with 36 and George S. Myers with 29.

Joe Ferguson, Lancaster, who landed the Democratic nomination for state treasurer over three opponents, was also favored locally, as was William G. Pickrel, Dayton, candidate for lieutenant governor.

William P. Stephenson and Chas. H. Hubbell for the two supreme court judgeships, and M. R. Allison, for the attorney general nomination.

The total recorded vote in Greene County approximated 6,000, exceeding the pre-primary estimate by about 500 votes. The Democratic vote was so small as to be almost negligible.

For secretary of state: Clarence J. Brown, 3,083; Edward J. Hummel, 61,339.

For treasurer of state (unexpired term): Edwin A. Todd, 289, 028.

For treasurer of state (full term): Ross Ake, 110,633.

Pauline Buckley, 95,570. Harry S. Day, 165,365.

For attorney general: Gilbert Bettman, 307,207.

For United States senator: Roscoe C. McCulloch, 297,317.

For judge of the supreme court: Reynolds R. Kinkade, 221,208; James E. Robinson, 233,704.

Democrat.

For governor: George White, 114,439; Stephen M. Young, 66,945.

For lieutenant governor: Herbert R. Cuyler, 56,003; William G. Pickrel, 97,176.

For secretary of state: J. H. Newman, 135,644.

For treasurer of state (unexpired term): Hanley Wellington Cone, 14,250; Joseph T. Ferguson, 60,251; W. V. Goshorn, 40,199; William J. Hiler, 33,696.

For attorney general: M. Ray Allison, 84,021; Samuel Burgeri, 57,223.

For United States Senator: Robert J. Buckley, 68,677; William W. Durbin, 35,096; John McSweeney, 30,270; George S. Myers, 16,760; Charles V. Truax, 31,966.

For judge of the supreme court: Coleman Avery, 59,668; Charles H. Hubbell, 66,022; Will P. Stephenson, 83,684.

Available returns indicate that approximately 400,000 Republicans and about 200,000 Democrats cast their ballots in the Buckeye State primaries Tuesday.

Governor Cooper polled the largest vote in the G. O. P. primary with Lieutenant Governor Brown next. In the Democratic primary, former State Librarian Newman received the biggest vote. Former Congressman White received the second largest vote.

Buckeye State voters Tuesday also nominated Democratic and Republican candidates for congress, for membership in the next Ohio Legislature, for appellate judgeships, selected their county tickets—from Common Pleas Judge and prosecutor to coroner—and elected members of state and county central committees.

Predictions were being made here today that as a result of the apparent nomination of Buckley for U. S. Senator, the Democrats will include a wet plank in the state platform which will be adopted at the Democratic state convention, to be held here within a few weeks.

The Theater

One of the major mysteries of the 1929-30 season along Broadway passes into history, officially unsolved, but its ghost will probably rise at intervals when there is mentioned the name of an entrancing young lady who has been presiding at the Imperial Theater.

The young lady is Mlle. Gina Malo. She arrived from France some weeks ago to take the place of Lily Damita, the film celebrity, in the musical show "Sons O' Guns," when Lily was released to pay a visit to France before re-appearing her film work.

Gina arrived with much acclaim, a fanfare of advance acclaim from France, and a warm welcome for her heels with "Dancing Partners," by Frederic and Fanny Hatton, the melodrama in which Bert and his new wife, Grace Menken, played around the country on the legitimate stage. Columbia will produce the picture. Dorothy and Bill Boyd are still very much "that way" and it is believed they will be married one of these days. Dorothy got nice notices for her performance in "Our Blushing Brides." She has one of those soft Southern voices that register so well over the microphone.

Dorothy Sebastian has been assigned the feminine lead opposite Bert Lytell in the talkie version of "Brothers," the melodrama in which Bert and his new wife, Grace Menken, played around the country on the legitimate stage. Columbia will produce the picture. Dorothy and Bill Boyd are still very much "that way" and it is believed they will be married one of these days. Dorothy got nice notices for her performance in "Our Blushing Brides." She has one of those soft Southern voices that register so well over the microphone.

Twenty Years '10- Ago -'30

Poultry fanciers in Xenia have formed a club known as the "Xenia Fanciers Club," with O. C. Custer as president and Harry E. Kiernan, secretary.

Mr. Howard Jones, W. Church and West Sts., is confined to his home because of illness.

A crowd estimated at 25,000 was in attendance at the third day of the Greene County Fair. Robert K., a Xenia horse, with Blair W., won second money in the 2:30 trotting stake.

GINA MALO

the little foreign star. Then something happened. A tiny whisper fluttered on the Broadway breeze gathered volume... became a rumor, then a bold assertion. Briefly, it was to the startling effect that little Mlle. Gina Malo from Paris is none other than Mrs. Flynn's daughter Janet of Cincinnati, O.

Not that it made a lot of difference whether Gina was Janet or Janet was Gina, but the gossips smacked their lips over what they insisted was a delicious hoax. They said Gina's French accent and manner were so perfect because she had been reared in a French convent. But they insisted she could have dispensed with both and still be the first class hit she turned out to be.

Neither Gina nor her sponsors, Messrs. Connolly and Swanstrom, have cared to make an official statement on the subject. Gina's petite beauty, her swaying toes, her enchanting voice speak for themselves. And when "Sons O' Guns," with its raking comic, Jack Donahue, and its lovely Gina pushes westward next month in the direction of Cincinnati and the "road," its patrons will be enjoying themselves too much to worry about the mystery of Gina and Janet.

The Shubert's made the season's bow for the legitimate theater with the naughty piece, "Ladies All," and seventy-six-year-old David Belasco followed close upon

CEDARVILLE COLLEGE SEEKING FUND TO FINANCE OPERATION

Budget of expenses for Cedarville College in 1930-31 will amount to slightly more than $35,000, a quarterly bulletin of the college reveals. The college will be required to raise a rotary fund, over and above the income from endowment and tuition, of at least $15,000.

The drive for the rotary fund started in Cedarville July 10, the object being two-fold: first, to avoid a deficit on the budget for maintenance of the college next year; second, to enable President W. R. McChesney to conduct a campaign to obtain a building and endowment fund of $750,000 and to meet all expenses incurred in this campaign.

The latter fund of $750,000 is to be raised as follows: at least $300,000 must be raised as soon as possible, college officials say, for the endowment, elevating the present fund to a $543,000 figure. That sum would give the college complete recognition in the various standardizing associations. It is hoped to raise the needed $300,000 by June, 1931.

The next $150,000 of the $750,000 to be raised will be put into a combined chapel and administration building, both being badly needed, it is said. The present chapel is overcrowded. There is also a need for new offices for the president, the dean, the registrar, the treasurer and more room for student activities.

The next $200,000 will be added to the endowment fund to meet the needs of an increasing attendance in the student body. The final $100,000 would be used to finance erection of a dormitory for girls. College authorities hope to reach the complete quota by June, 1934.

BELLBROOK

The old argument between Bellbrook and Waynesville came to a close Sunday afternoon at Bellbrook when the home team completely overturned and forever blasted the last hope of the Quakers. The visitors loaded to the guards with players from Green, Montgomery and Warren Counties, made a pitiful showing when matched against Manager Zimmerman and his aggregation of star players. The score of 25 to 1 in favor of the homers, should be conclusive evidence that the visitors were clearly out-classed in every particular. They probably could win victories over Bobtown, Rippsville or Roxanna, but when it comes to playing such a team as Bellbrook, there is no comparison. The game which probably established a number of new records, began at 3 o'clock after "The Rev. Father Sidenstricker" (for mer collector of customs at the port of New York) had collected all the revenue available. The battle started with the four hundred and fifty pound battery composed of Guy McMichaels, the Gander-town wonder and the famous Goal John doing the delivering and receiving. The game on the part of the homers was well-played, and each, who took part deserves honorable mention for the masterful manner in which they performed at all angles throughout the game. The visitors who seemed to have lost heart after a few of McMichael's twisters passed over the plate unhurt, played a miserable game both at bat and in the field at times, it would seem difficult to determine whether they were playing golf or lawn tennis. An interesting feature of the contest was the great number of times the bases were filled by the homers and the scores of errors made by the visitors. Goal John who can always be depended upon to snatch a game from the burning, or knock a long one just for fun, whether needed or not, smashed out a record-breaker into center field, and crossed the plate for a home run several minutes before the ball was recovered. "Red" Crowl made hits and singles by the homers were as common as in the old days when seven balls and four strikes were allowed the batter, and the "moundsman" pitched the ball instead of throwing it. Manager Zimmerman is desirous of obtaining games with any good team in Greene or adjacent counties, but draws the line on all aggregations such as bored the spectators to death in last Sunday's farce.

RAMON NOVARRO

His Spanish forebears conquered Mexico . . . won the country in ten brief years. But Ramon alone conquered America, conquered Europe, and all points east . . . in scarcely more than a camera's flicker. For Ramon gave the world a thrill!

And that's the tale of another young conqueror, OLD GOLD cigarettes. New England surrendered in just two months. "You win, OLD GOLD!" said the Middle West. From coast-to-coast the victory spread. And OLD GOLD in just one year became the country's fastest growing cigarette. OLD GOLD, like Novarro, offered the world a brand new thrill. Finer tobaccos gave a mellower taste. But, New York and Chicago, Boston and San Francisco and hundreds of smaller cities and towns throughout the United States may know what are the latest styles even before they are shown in Paris.

A seeming paradox, but true. Merchants maintain representatives in Paris, London, Vienna and other European style centers who cable the latest news of the modes, and ship samples long before they are sold abroad. In America, the news is translated into advertisements and printed by local newspapers throughout the United States. And so, American women are able to dress in the latest styles in dress more accurately than the women of any other country on the face of the globe.

CLOSE RACES MARK COUNTY PRIMARY DEMOCRATS FAVOR BULKLEY, WHITE

DAY NOMINATED FOR TREASURER OF OHIO IN SURPRISE RESULT

Wet, Dry Fight Seen
Cooper Unopposed,
Leads Ticket

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 13.—That Ohio Democrats, at their state-wide primary election Tuesday, nominated former Congressman Robert J. Bulkley, Cleveland, a wet, as their nominee for United States senator, and designated Joseph T. Ferguson, Lancaster, as their choice for state treasurer, appeared certain early today.

Former State Treasurer Harry S. Day, Sandusky, apparently, has won the Republican nomination for state treasurer by defeating State Treasurer H. Ross Ake, Canton, by a margin of more than 50,000 votes.

The Buckeye State Republicans disposed of the remaining contest in their primary election by re-nominating Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown for a third term. Brown defeated Edward J. Hummel, Cincinnati, by more than 250,000 votes.

The Republicans renominated Governor Myers V. Cooper, Lieut. Governor John T. Brown, Attorney General Gilbert Bettman and State Supreme Judges Reynolds R. Kinade and James E. Robinson and selected United States Senator Roscoe C. McCulloch, for United States Senator, all without opposition.

The prohibition issue is expected to figure conspicuously in the fall campaign in Ohio as a result of the nominations of Bulkley and McCulloch for the United States senatorial toga.

The Democrats nominated former Lieut. Gov. William G. Pickrel, Dayton, for lieutenant governor; former State Librarian John H. Newman, Columbus, for secretary of state; Attorney M. Ray Allison, Columbus, for attorney general; and Will P. Stephenson, West Union, and Charles H. Hubbell, Cleveland, for state supreme judge, on the basis of returns available at the secretary of state's office.

Unofficial returns from 8,069 of Ohio's 8,987 election precincts, tabulated at the secretary of state's office at 6 o'clock this morning, give White a majority of 47,494 votes over former State Representative Stephen M. Young, Cleveland, for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Bulkley has a lead of 33,581 votes over William W. Durbin, Kenton, his closest competitor for the U. S. senatorial nomination. Ferguson, in the Democratic race for the state treasurer'ship, was 20,052 votes ahead of W. V. Goshorn, Gallon.

Pickrel led Herbert R. Cuyler, Cleveland, by 41,173 votes in the Democratic contest for the lieutenant governorship and Allison, the Democratic nominee for attorney general, was 26,798 votes ahead of Samuel Burgess, Cleveland Heights.

Newman had no opposition for the Democratic nomination for secretary of state.

The following tabulation of unofficial returns from 8,069 of Ohio's 8,987 precincts was announced by Secretary of State Brown at 6 a. m.

Republican:
For governor: Myers V. Cooper, 377,312.
For lieutenant governor: John

BRAND WINS IN 7TH DISTRICT RETURNS SHOW

Urbana Incumbent Defeats Gram For Nomination

Incomplete returns from the nine counties composing the Seventh Congressional District indicated late Tuesday night that Charles Brand, Urbana, present congressman, had been re-nominated on the Republican ticket over Judge Harry G. Gram, Springfield, by an estimated plurality of 3,500 votes.

With 310 precincts out of 494 reporting unofficial returns, Congressman Brand had received 10,118 votes and Judge Gram, 9,663. These precincts included 120 from Clark County, where Gram led by 1,700 votes. Gram also carried Greene County by a vote of 2,602 to 2,423 and was leading in Clinton County but the Urbana congressman was leading in every other county.

The last available vote on the congressional race by counties follows:

County	Brand	Gram
Clark	3,519	5,227
Greene	2,423	2,602
Champaign	1,551	913
Fayette	1,538	1,105

TROUBLE OVER WILL DELAYS STEEL CASE WITH THIRD RECESS

Unable To Qualify Executors To Carry On Action

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 13.—Difficulties arising from the will of the late Myron C. Wick, co-plaintiff in the suit to enjoin the merger of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company with the Bethlehem Steel Company, today had resulted in the third adjournment of the trial since it began seven weeks ago.

Judge David G. Jenkins, following a conference with attorneys for both sides in the suit, adjourned the trial until next Monday, when one of the witnesses to the Wick will was reported to be on a vacation in Canada.

The Wick will was filed in Mahoning County Probate Court here yesterday, but the hearing to qualify the four executors to continue the merger suit, was postponed until Friday because of the absence of the witness and Wick's two minor children who now are said to be in New York.

Executors named in the will are Mrs. Francis Todd Wick, the widow; the Dollar Savings and Trust Co.; Philip Wick, a brother, and Webster Todd, Mr. Wick's brother. The will bequeaths the bulk of the estate to Mrs. Wick.

PRECINCTS HOLD UP RETURNS

FAILURE of two voting precincts to report returns promptly to the board of elections Tuesday night, held up the completed tabulation of Greene County votes until 2 a. m. Wednesday.

The two precincts last to report were Beaver Creek Twp. east precinct and Caesar Creek Twp. When failure of these two precincts to report held up the complete tabulation which the board is required to make to the secretary of state, board members made frantic efforts to reach precinct officials in those districts.

Sleepy citizens were dragged from their beds to telephones and questioned regarding the information, until a complete, unofficial tabulation was received at 2 a. m. Considerable interest hinged on the results in those two precincts because of their effect on the close commission race. Beaver Creek East is C. A. Jacobs' home precinct and the big majority he polled there switched him from second to first place in the race.

KIDNAPING REPORT REMAINS MYSTERY; REFUSE TO EXPLAIN

St. Louis Couple Is Safe
At Home After Wild
Rumors

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 13.—Charles Kern, wealthy St. Louis resident, and his wife returned to their home here early today after being reported kidnapped by swindlers yesterday from a railroad train at Defiance, O., according to the St. Louis police.

The Kerns declined to discuss their strange departure from the train at Defiance and disappearance in an automobile with two men who boarded the train at Fort Wayne, Ind., which led to a widespread search for them. Their only comment was that they were "home and safe."

The couple left the train while on their way from here to Toledo with a bank draft for $70,000 which Kern told his St. Louis banker, J. H. Powers, was to be used in a real estate transaction.

The police here merely stated that the return of the Kerns had ended the search for them.

Impetus had been given to the search by the belief of Police Chief Gerk and of Powers, the banker, that a supposed group of wealthy Toledo men with whom Kern proposed to deal were in reality a gang of confidence operators. Both had sought to dissuade the couple from making the trip.

When the report reached here that the couple had left the train with apparent strangers at Defiance, it was thought the supposed swindlers, learning that they were suspected, had intercepted the Kerns before they reached Toledo, and might even hold them for ransom.

Three men were reported to have been in the automobile in which the Kerns and the two men from the train left Defiance.

GAZETTE ELECTION PARTY POPULAR AS NEW METHODS USED

New Public Address System Makes "Hit" With Big Crowd

"The most successful election night party ever held here," that was the verdict of election fans Tuesday night after listening to the election returns furnished by the Gazette through its new Public Address System.

The new system was used for a news broadcast for the first time to give the primary returns and its great volume of sound and clarity of tone, won it instant popularity with a throng of 1,000 or more people who crowded into S. Detroit St. between Main and Second Sts. to hear the returns.

The Public Address System, employed for the first time at the county fair last week, where it was exceedingly popular, consists of a compact sixteen-tube amplifying unit, a mammoth radio receiving set, a regulation radio microphone and an automatic micro-operated phonograph, connected with three high-powered speakers in huge horns. Thus it is a miniature broadcasting station and the editor's office of the Gazette became the studio for its premiere here.

The system proved ideal because by merely turning a button, listeners were tuned in on the periodical announcements of state-wide election returns from the office of the secretary of state at Columbus or were switched onto the microphone for information on the local returns tabulated in the Gazette editorial rooms. Between announcements musical radio programs furnished entertainment for the crowd. Local announcements were made by William King, Gazette advertising manager.

The satisfactory method of giving the returns, kept a huge crowd entertained all evening and combined with the close races that resulted, kept a number of the hardier fans in front of the Gazette Bldg. until 2 a. m. when the Gazette signed off in the belief the election board would be unable to provide additional returns. Since election night crowds usually broke up much earlier, the persistence of the fans was taken as an indication of the popularity of the new methods of giving returns. The system will be employed for future news broadcasts.

CRESWELL, JACOBS, WILLIAMSON, WOLF, BAUGHN ARE VICTORS

McCallister Nominee For Prosecutor And Van Pelt Wins Treasury Race; Heavy Vote Cast; Voters Favor Gram Over Brand

Recording a moderately heavy primary vote Tuesday, the Greene County electorate selected these nominees on the Republican ticket for state representative and county offices at the November election on the face of complete unofficial returns from all of the forty-eight precincts:

Re-nominated R. D. Williamson for representative in the General Assembly; nominated C. A. Jacobs for county commissioner, Paul H. Creswell for auditor, Attorney Marcus McCallister for prosecuting attorney, John Baughn for sheriff, Leroy Wolf for recorder and Harold M. Van Pelt for treasurer.

In one of the principal contests of local interest from the Republican standpoint, R. D. Williamson, present state representative and veteran politician, was re-nominated for another term in a three-cornered race with a plurality of nearly 1,500 votes over his nearest opponent. Williamson polled 3,012 votes. Fred M. Ervin, Xenia grain dealer, ran second with 1,517 and Mrs. Carrie H. Flatter, president of the Greene County Women's Christian Temperance Union, was third with 1,046.

The closest race in contests for the nomination for county offices developed in the three-cornered fight for the one vacancy on the board of county commissioners, resulting in a victory for C. A. Jacobs, well-known Beaver Creek Twp. farmer, and defeat for Herman W. Ervey, incumbent, seeking another term, and John A. North, Xenia plumbing contractor and former commissioner.

With the race narrowing down to Jacobs and North the outcome was problematical until returns from the last two precincts were received about 2 a. m. Both were running neck and neck but the vote of Beaver Creek Twp. East precinct, Jacobs' home precinct, gave him a substantial majority and enabled him to win the nomination by a margin of 161 votes. Jacobs received 2,328 votes; North, 2,167 and Ervey, 1,410.

An unsuccessful candidate for the office four years ago staged a

New Beauty Queen Says Cooking Not In Her Line
—Plans Stage Career

DOROTHY DELL GOFF

By Central Press
NEW ORLEANS, La., Aug. 13.—Believe it or not, there has finally appeared a "Miss United States" who doesn't "just love housework."

For the first time in the history of the national and international beauty contests one winner is honest enough to say that washing dishes gives her a great big pain and that cooking is something she despises.

Dorothy Dell Goff—"Dot" in her New Orleans home—crowned "Miss United States" at the Galveston International Pageant of Pulchritude, and subsequently proclaimed by the judges as "Miss Universe," tells the world in no unmistakable words that housework is not in her line and that a career on the stage is her one ambition.

"I want to be like Marie Dressler," she said shortly after the crown of beauty had been placed on her golden curls, "and that's my one goal in life."

"Cook?" she repeated. "Not I. I hate it like nobody's business."

The 122-pound golden-curl 17-year-old from the Crescent City has been winning beauty contests since she was 13 months old, so

Mrs. Adelaide Skinner, a former resident of Xenia, who now resides four miles east of Bellbrook, was arrested in Dayton Tuesday afternoon on a charge of shoplifting. She is said to have confessed to having shoplifted in seven different stores and when taken into custody a quantity of wearing apparel, said to have been stolen from a Dayton department store, was confiscated.

The arrest was made as Mrs. Skinner was stepping into an automobile at Fourth and Main Sts. She was to be arraigned in the Dayton police court Wednesday morning to answer charges of petit larceny.

National Farm Outlook

By ARTHUR H. JENKINS
Editor, The Farm Journal
Written for Central Press

From the things I read in the newspapers it is plain that many people still do not grasp the difference between a co-operative selling organization and a stabilization corporation.

Probably a great many people do not care either. But for those who do take some interest in the farm situation, it is really important to understand how unlike these two kinds of organizations are.

Perhaps I ought to say, first, that neither one of them is the same as the federal farm board, and neither of them is the government. People use words very loosely, as a rule, but to say "the government is holding 69,000,000 bushels of wheat," as I read in a newspaper the other day, is beyond all bounds of loose language.

The government has nothing to do with the wheat trade except to advance money to the farm board. The farm board does nothing except give advice and lend money.

Neither of them buys, sells, owns or holds wheat or any other commodity whatever.

A co-operative selling organization takes the wheat of its own members, or the cotton, or whatever it is, and sells it the best way it can. Its sole function is to sell. And in any normal year it sells every bushel or bale that is turned over to it, to somebody at some price. It should finish up each crop year with nothing on hand unsold.

The stabilization corporation, on the other hand, is a new kind of agency, the purpose of which is to stabilize prices by buying when there is too much of something for sale, holding it as long as necessary, and selling it when the market calls for it.

This has season, for example, the grain co-operative found it could not sell some of its wheat to advantage in the market. The wheat stabilization corporation thereupon bought this surplus, letting the co-operative out. And this is the 69,000,000 bushels that now are being held off the market.

It is perfectly plain to anyone with an ounce of economic sense that this process can go only so far. Stabilization will work nicely on small seasonal surpluses and shortages.

But where there are no shortages at all, here or anywhere else in the world, that is a very different matter. It would be absurd to expect the stabilization corporation to take 69,000,000 bushels of wheat this year, add 75,000,000 bushels next year, 100,000,000 more the year after that, and so on. Yet this is exactly what would happen if the world surpluses should continue, and the corporation should keep on buying.

There is not that much money in the treasury, nor that much storage space in the country. It is too ridiculous to talk about.

If it were possible to get hold of 200,000,000 bushels of wheat and 3,000,000 bales of cotton, put them in a pile, burn them to ashes, and assess every wheat and cotton grower pro rata to cover the loss, that would very likely be the most intelligent plan of all.

It is a pity it can't be done.

By Central Press
HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 77.—Forty miles from Hollywood, lies Malibu Beach, the exclusive playground of the film elite. It is here on this isolated strip of sand that the kings and queens of film discard their royal raiments for coats of tan and their studio toils for informal playtime.

Since an invitation to Malibu is almost as rare as the Kohinoor diamond, you can imagine how honored L was when John Boles and his wife, Marcelite, asked me to spend the day with them at the lovely, new bungalow they have just purchased from Con Conrad. And if you don't think I accepted Johnny-on-the-spot, you're crazy.

Three short years ago there were only some twenty-odd cottages at Malibu, but today there are 107 cottages along a mere one-mile strip. Although usually the prospect of a hike would send me into solitary seclusion, yet, when John suggested that we take a stroll along the beach after lunch, I grabbed my seven-mile boots, and Presto! I was off with him.

FAMOUS NEIGHBOR.

The Boles' next-door neighbor is Lois Moran, but Lois has rented her cottage this year because her non-stop activity at the studio has allowed her no time for forty-mile commuting. So, instead of seeing Lois, her charming mother Gladys and her little adopted sister Betty, as I always have in my past visits to Malibu, I had to content myself with a surreptitious peep at Louise Brooks, who is the new tenant of "Halikalan," Lois' "Happy Land."

Snuggling close to "Halikalan" is "Beau Geste," Ronald Coleman's summer retreat, Ronnie running to his usual form, was nowhere to be seen in the front of the house, but was off in the back somewhere, highly involved in an exciting game of tennis.

MEETS "IT" GIRL.

Continuing our trek after the congratulations were duly imparted, my discerning eye next spotted Clara Bow "in the flesh," and if you could have seen the bathing-suit she wore, you would know that I am not exaggerating! Clara had just returned from vacation of several weeks and I don't ever remember her looking as well, or as pretty, or as happy in a long, long, long time. Wonder whether Rex Bell, her current heart interest, who, incidentally, was Clara's lone visitor that day, is at all responsible? As we were having our pictures snapped together, Wesley

JOHN BOLES

Ruggles came over to introduce his brother, Charlie, to Clara. They are to appear in "Little Miss Bluebeard" together, but as yet had never been introduced!

And so on, to greet Barbara Stanwick and her husband, Frank Fay, Sidney Blackmer and his wife, Lenore Ulric, Louise Fazenda and her husband, Hal Wallis; Vivienne Segal, Carmel Myers, Neil Hamilton, Lella Hyams, Clive Brook, Ruth Chatterton, Gertrude Oltmstead, Mervyn Leroy, Charlie Farrell, Catherine Dale Owen, Eddie Cantor and Gloria Swanson. Talk about "star-gazing," I'm still blind from the rays!

YELLOW SPRINGS

The services held in the First Presbyterian Church Sunday morning were conducted by Rev. Daniel Brownlee of Dayton. The pastor, Rev. Carl White, is having a vacation. Rev. and Mrs. Brownlee and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Swabe and Miss Olive Coe, of Clifton were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hermon Coe, Sunday.

Miss Hazel Brewer entertained a group of friends from Springfield at her home on Dayton St., Tuesday evening. A picnic supper was served on the lawn. After which a messenger delivered a telegram announcing the engagement of Miss Myrl Bennett and Mr. Ward Blew. There were fifteen guests present.

Mr. Charles Hatfield and sister, Mrs. Jessie Stretcher, left Wednesday by automobile for North Carolina where they will visit

Kill the Mosquitoes

Mosquitos Inject Poisonous Thinning Fluid into Blood
Before They Can Withdraw Blood from Human Being.

It is the thinning fluid mosquitoes inject direct into the blood stream that causes the welts and the dangerous blood infection.

We, as manufacturers, guarantee Fly-Tox to be the strongest, safest, surest and most economical household insect spray on the market for destruction of mosquitoes, flies, fleas, moths, roaches, ants and other household insects.

Fly-Tox was developed at the foremost scientific research institute of its kind in the world.

Spray Fly-Tox towards the ceiling, filling the room or rooms with the spray mist. The Fly-Tox hand sprayer does this most efficiently and economically because of no waste.

We have designed Fly-Tox hand sprayers so they do not waste the material as is wasted when a sprayer is used that drips or permits droplets to drop on the floor. All dripping of spray material is waste. No liquid is wasted by dripping or droplets when Fly-Tox hand sprayer is used.

OAKLAND-PONTIAC
up to $170

We have just been advised by the Oakland Motor Car Company that, effective August 11th, prices on all current model Pontiac Big Sixes and Oakland Eights have been reduced . . . with reductions up to $170.

Pontiac Big Six—now $665 up
A big car at small car price

Oakland Eight—now $895 up
America's lowest-priced Eight

These reductions are made because in the winter the factory will present two new cars which, while changed enough to classify as new models, will remain practically unchanged in appearance, size and design.

The two new cars will have the same type engines used in the cars now offered.

These new prices give you an opportunity to own a big car at small car cost and at a great saving.

Don't miss this opportunity. At their new low prices these cars are the greatest "buys" in the automobile field today.

KIWANIANS ENJOY STEAK ROAST HERE

Thirty-one members of the Xenia Kiwanis Club enjoyed a steak roast Tuesday evening at the picnic grounds of the Xenia Country Club. Following the supper Charles A. Bone gave a report of the national convention of Kiwanis Clubs, at Atlantic City, which he attended a few weeks ago. J. Kenneth Williamson, Palm Beach, Fla., who was the first president of the Xenia Kiwanis Club when it was organized, was present and gave a short talk to members.

JURY DECLINES TO INDICT CARROLL ON CHARGES

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—The grand jury dismissed the charges of obscenity lodged against Earl Carroll, Faith Bacon and several others as a result of the production here of Carroll's revue, the "Vanities." The grand jurors held that the evidence against the defendants did not warrant an indictment.

Besides Carroll and Miss Bacon the other defendants were May Carroll, a chorus girl and Jimmy Savvo, comedian.

The police raided the show several weeks ago following a complaint made by Police Captain James Coy, who declared that Miss Bacon performed a dance while nude, except for two fans. He also claimed that a dressing scene in which Savvo dressed and undressed a chorus girl was in violation of public decency.

Earl Carroll told the jury that he had eliminated the two objectionable scenes from the show and said that as a consequence he saw no legitimate action for further complaint.

Following the dismissal Carroll said: "I am very happy that the grand jury allowed us to appear before them to tell our side of the case. Naturally the dismissal makes us feel that we have secured the vindication we hoped and prayed for."

Incidentally, Carroll stated that the scenes that resulted in his arrest would not be returned to the show.

Both Miss Bacon and Carroll were all smiles when the jury's decision was announced and plainly showed their jubilation.

COMMITTEE PLACES BRING NO FACTIONAL FIGHTS THIS YEAR

For the first time in thirty years there was no factional contest between the two rival Republican groups in Greene County at the primary election Tuesday for the twenty-four places on the Greene County Republican Central Committee.

The make-up of the committee will be about evenly split between the two groups.

Twenty-two of the committee places were uncontested and the two contests which did materialize were purely of local nature, the candidates not having the sponsorship of either local political organization.

The two contests which developed were among individuals in Yellow Springs village and Beaver creek Twp.

George A. Donley, son of Thomas Donley, former mayor of Yellow Springs, defeated D. H. Fittz, present village mayor, for a committee place by a vote of 160 to 134. The vote in the west precinct of the village was: Donley, 103; Fittz, 62; east precinct—Donley, 57; Fittz, 72.

In the other contest in Beaver creek Twp., which arose over township school affairs, John H. Munger defeated Lester J. Shoup, 287 to 172. The vote in the three precincts was: Beaver middle—Munger, 93; Shoup, 45; Beaver east—Munger, 127; Shoup, 73; Beaver west—Munger, 67; Shoup, 54.

There were no contests, as far as could be learned, for places on the Democratic county central committee.

PRIMARY VOTE HERE TUESDAY BELIEVED HEAVIEST IN YEARS

That the Greene County electorate cast the heaviest primary vote in a number of years Tuesday is the opinion of Earl Short, clerk of the board of elections. Mr. Short based his conclusions on the fact the election board found it necessary to send extra ballots to a number of precincts in different parts of the county over and above the supply allotted to these precincts.

Greater interest than usual was manifested in Beavercreek Twp., because of the candidacy of C. A. Jacobs, prominent farmer of the township, for county commissioner. The election board sent 100 extra ballots to the east precinct in this township and a few extra ballots to the middle precinct.

Xenia precinct No. 1 used 100 extra ballots and the second precinct in Xenia city also used a few more than its original consignment, as did the southwest Xenia Twp. precinct.

One precinct in Yellow Springs village and another in Jamestown found their supplies insufficient to meet the demand of voters and borrowed a number of ballots from other precincts in these towns with the consent of the election board.

The board, under the law, will not commence the official tabulation of the primary vote until Wednesday and expects to have it completed sometime Thursday. The unofficial count, however, for all forty-eight precincts was completed early Wednesday.

Figures resuscitated by Mr. Short disclosed 5,611 Republican ballots and 488 Democratic votes were cast at the August primary in 1928 and at the November, 1928 election there were 8,692 Republican and 4,672 Democratic votes recorded.

Tuesday's primary vote was believed to be substantially greater than in August, 1928.

WHEAT SITUATION WILL BE DISCUSSED

J. C. Neff, extension specialist of farm management of Ohio State University, will discuss the "Wheat Situation" at a meeting in the assembly room of the Court House, Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. According to County Agent E. A. Drake, who is making arrangements for the meeting, such questions as factors affecting the price of wheat to the Ohio farmer, situation as to world wheat production, outlook for United States wheat and Ohio wheat will be discussed. According to Drake these and other similar questions are timely at this season. A good attendance is expected.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

NOT SPEECH BUT LIFE—Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven, but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven.—Matthew 7:21.

COUNTRY'S GROWTH

Population of the continental United States for 1930 was announced recently by the census bureau as 122,698,190, an increase of 16,987,570 or 16.1 per cent over 1920.

Adding in the total inhabitants of the possessions and territories of the United States the bureau found the total population of the United States for 1930, was 124,848,864, 17,339,809 or 16.1 per cent over 1920.

Three hundred and twenty years ago the English colonies in America had a total known population of 210; but not until 1790 was the first official census of the United States taken, which showed a population of 3,929,214, with the center of population 23 miles east of Baltimore. Within the next 10 years settlers moving inland from the Atlantic seaboard shifted the center of population 40.6 miles to the west and 0.5 mile to the south. The population did not rise above 10,000,000 until 1830, when it was set at 12,866,020. This was more than 3,000,000 above the figure of 9,638,453 for 1820, and was greater than the increase in any prior decade, although it included no statistics from the territory now occupied by the states of California, Iowa, Minnesota, New Mexico, Oregon, Texas, Utah and Wisconsin.

We are told, according to statistics gathered by Professor E. M. East of Harvard university, that 150,000,000 persons are born into the world every day and 100,000 die. Professor East has also estimated that the population of the United States will become stationary at 200,000,000 before 2000 A. D. With an increase of only 7,271,127 necessary to bring the nation's population up to this mark, and with the present rate well over 15,000,000 per decade, we are apparently speeding toward this arbitrary goal. Whether we stop there or not is another question. As a nation our population now exceeds that of the whole South American continent and is but approximately 23,000,000 less than that of the continent of Africa. As long as we seem not yet to be faced with a pressing problem of where to put the people it is quite possible that we shall continue to grow for some time to come.

RECLAIMING THE CRIMINAL

Criminal life affects society disastrously and it cannot afford to be indifferent to the criminal. Until recently it was the custom to treat insanity by whipping the patient. Psychiatrists say that the treatment of the criminal has little more rational relationship to the factors involved. There are criminal propensities which in many cases may be cured, but they will never be cured by subjecting the criminal to conditions and surroundings that will feed those propensities.

The law has a two-fold purpose—to protect society and to reclaim the offender. To accomplish this, it is necessary that the causes be discovered—the economic, social, mental, emotional and physical causes—which often combine to create the criminal tendency. To understand these, the psychiatrist and scientist must be given larger opportunities to formulate the needed programs, suppressing and eliminating criminal tendencies.

Public opinion needs to be aroused to the point of putting into effect a program that will turn the offender over to a board authorized to confine him, to study his peculiarities, mental, physical, social and moral and cure him if he can be cured, to retain him in custody as long as he is a menace to society and to release him when serious risk to society from his conduct has disappeared.

The WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

WORK AND A HOBBY

Many will envy Adrian C. Cooke, 90-year-old Chicago man, who has patented 87 inventions and is still at it. He works six days a week and still inventing his hobby. Happy is the man who finds his work is his hobby. He is sure to make good and he is sure to find self-expression in his job.

ALL NEIGHBORS

A Liverpool preacher, speaking in St. John's Cathedral, New York, tells us the world is so small now that we are all neighbors. Transportation and news communication have done that. It is always more or less difficult to get along with neighbors. We carry a greater responsibility than ever for our behavior now that we all live so close together. In the early days a man could live pretty much by and for himself. It can't be done now.

WHAT'S IT ABOUT?

Dale Jackson, endurance flight wonder, flies from Montreal to New York, 350 miles, in an hour and 55 minutes. And Pennsylvania railroad officials predict a 14-hour electric train between New York and Chicago. What is it all about? What are we going to do when we get there? One wonders if the well known world is going a little crazy.

IN STORAGE

Word from Washington is that President Hoover has sent the White House wine glasses into storage. There may be a difference between throwing things away and putting them in storage. The "noble experiment" of prohibition continues.

EASY LIFE

United Cigar Stores start a 50-cent book-of-the-month plan. Life is so easy now. We get everything done for us. No need of thinking. We even have our books picked out for us. Our food is put up in neat and convenient cans. Our ideas are given to us by pulpits and newspapers. Professional sportsmen furnish our thrills while we sit in the grandstand.

MORE COMFORTS

Speaking of the modern plan of having everything done for us, making life soft for those who have the money, note New York's newest butcher shop experiment. The shop has no butcher. Girls sell meat neatly done up in packages.

TELEPHONES

The United States has upward of 20 million telephones. The rest of the world has but 10 million. Germany comes next to the United States with three million. Wonder how much waste talk goes over those 20,000,000 phones? And what a wonderful thing for the American nervous system if they were all taken out for a year.

REAL HOSPITALITY

Real hospitality is not so much doing things for your guest as it is giving him the feeling that he can do as he pleases, not bothered by your too eager suggestions. The good host isn't always out in front.

Answers to questions of information and fact can be obtained by writing to Central Press Bureau, P. O. Box 126, Washington, D. C., and enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. No answers will be given to marital, medical or legal questions.

Official Agriculture

How large an acreage does it take to constitute a farm? In taking the census anything from three acres up is considered a farm. No tract smaller than this is recorded as a farm unless it produced at least $250 in crops last year.

Radio Signals

What call is used on radios to signify "attention"? The call now in use is C Q, which means "attention." C Q D, which was a distress signal, is no longer in use, having been supplanted by the signal S O S.

Discouraging Ants

How can ants be kept from tables in an infested house? Perhaps the most effective and durable barrier which can be used indoors is a bichloride-of-mercury tape of band. Tape is soaked in a saturated solution of bichloride of mercury and then hung up to dry. It is then placed around the legs of tables, safes, etc., and if it is kept dry will last from six to twelve months. Common lamp-wick one-half inch wide, is ideal for this purpose. Extreme caution is advised in the handling of the bichloride of mercury, as it is very poisonous.

Transatlantic Flights

What was the first airplane to fly from Europe to America? The Bremen, in 1928, was the first to fly from Europe to America, and the Southern Cross the second.

The Old Dominion

Why is Virginia called the Old Dominion? The nickname was taken from early documents, which referred to it as the ancient colony and dominion.

Gold Star Fathers

Will Gold Star Fathers be sent to France? No such action has been taken as yet and none is seriously contemplated at present.

Boulder Dam

What is the nearest large town to the site of the Boulder dam? The dam site is about 30 miles southeast of Las Vegas (Nev.), a town with a population of about 5,500, the Los Angeles and Salt Lake line of the Union Pacific system.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

PUTTING ONE OVER

NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.—Some years ago Eugene Walter wrote a play that found favor in the eyes of a certain producer (now dead), famous for his vulpine tricks. "I'll put the play on for you," said the producer, "but you'll have to change the character of the villain."

"What's the matter with the character?" inquired Gene. "Nothing, except that it's so badly overdrawn it's preposterous. There never was such a character since the world began. In the entire range of human history there never existed such an impossible mixture of viciousness and stupidity. You'll have to re-write the part."

"What are you talking about?" protested the ruffled scribe. "I drew that character from life." "You mean to tell me you actually knew such a man? Who in heaven's name was he?"

"Why, that's YOU," said Gene, dodging a cut-glass ink well, as he skidded in the direction of the elevator.

WHAT A MISTAKE!

A collector of "nut" china traveled all over New York looking for an old-fashioned mustache cup, without success. Finally, some one told him of a little hardware and china dealer on Eighth avenue, who hadn't thrown anything away since Dewey took Manila.

The collector sought him out. The dealer was sorry, but he had only one such cup in the place, and it wasn't any good. He'd had it for twenty-five years without being able to sell it. He said: "You remember when them cups was all stamped, 'Father and Grandpa'?" Well, I got a batch of them—way back in nineteen five. They were all stamped right except this single cup. The manufacturer made a mistake and wrote 'Mother' on it. Of course, nobody wants a mustache cup with 'Mother' stamped on it in big gold letters."

"Oh, I'm not particular," said the collector. "Let me see it." It was produced—a beauty of its kind. "How much?" queried the collector. "Gimme fifteen cents and we'll call it square," said the dealer. "This was acquired the feature of the 'nut' collection."

HIS SHIP COMES IN!

HOOVER'S EXPERIENCE IN EAST KEEPS MARINES OUT OF CHINA

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—President Hoover has lived in the far east himself, which doubtless explains why huge naval reinforcements were not ordered immediately to oriental waters upon the latest flareup in chronically smoldering and frequently acutely conflagrant China.

"More marines!" was Secretary of State Kellogg's invariable reaction to such alarms. Not knowing any more about actual conditions in that part of the world than his cabinet chief, President Coolidge let him have his way about it.

As a matter of fact, the Americans in China, can be protected just as well by comparatively a few marines as by ten or a dozen times as many. Those who are scattered hither and yon over the face of the republic could not be protected by a million.

Anyone who knows Shanghai knows how all the foreigners in China, who live bunched together, are situated. Shanghai is the most important community of them, but the others differ from it very little, except in the number of their alien inhabitants.

The foreign city of Shanghai, then, is built on a narrow strip of land extending along the Whang-poo river, a few miles from its junction with the big Yangtze, about an hour's steaming from the point where the latter empties into the Yellow sea.

American, European and Japanese warships have no difficulty or not much, crossing Woosung bar, at the Yangtze's mouth in getting up to the town, and there fifteen or twenty of them lie, from year's end to year's end, about a baseball pitch off the bund, or waterfront.

These craft are obsolete tubs, because there would be no sense in wasting modern men-o-war on such duty, but they can shoot, and their batteries always are in readiness to lay down, all around the settlement, a barrage that no native force possibly could break through.

Wherever there are "foreign cities" in the republic, they are planned on the Shanghai model and stand on similar sites—on the coast or the banks of navigable streams—safely under the guns of a fleet of armor-clad old vessels, but invincible against anything China has to offer.

To be sure, Peking (now Peiping) where the legation staffs were penned up during the Boxer troubles, is in a class by itself—being inland. However, the diplomatic quarter there does not rate as a "foreign city"—nor is it mentioned as in danger at present, or likely to be.

It is true that China's foreigners might find some of their footholds untenable if their supplies were cut off from the landward. They themselves could get away on shipboard, but perhaps at the cost of abandoning everything they owned to be plundered.

This could hardly happen at a port like Shanghai, which, being close to the ocean, could easily be provisioned from the sea, and probably could withstand a siege indefinitely, as could Tientsin, the former German port of Tientsin and other coastal settlements.

The hazard at the triple cities of Hankow, Hanyang and Wuchang (on the three land angles formed by the entrance of the River Han into the Yangtze) is much greater—not to the foreigners' lives, unless they were to line up over-long ashore in the face of peril, but to their property.

The white folks' portion of Hankow (Hanyang and Wuchang are factory districts) is a miniature Shanghai, but instead of being only two or three hours' steaming from tidewater, it is nearly 1,000 miles (not quite so far, in a beeline overland) up the winding Yangtze.

Ocean-going boats do ascend the stream and tie up at the Hankow bund. Rescuing the inhabitants presents no difficult problem, but the place itself is not as defensible as Shanghai. It could be defended, of course, but it would be a large-scale military undertaking.

Changsha's recent fate shows how hard alien colonies, far up Chinese rivers, are to protect. Theoretically it ought to have been possible to safeguard the town from the River Slang, but low water hampered the gunboats so much that the best they could do was to take foreigners off.

As for relieving remote missionary and trading stations, even a vast army could not do it, for it would have to stick together; not scatter in many directions, to take aid to a handful of colonists here and there. The country is too big, for one thing—about the size of the United States.

Foreign merchants and diplomatic officials in China unquestionably favor the dispatch of formidable military expeditions of their various nationalities to the revolution-rout republic—and demand them in the name of protection, because they consider that the best excuse.

In reality they are not much afraid; at worst, they could get away if they chose. What they actually want is intervention, with a view to permanent, dependable foreign domination of the whole country, to clinch their own commercial interests.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

By MRS. MARY MORTON

MENU HINT

Creamed Chicken and Peas
Hot Biscuit Fresh Preserves
Riced Potatoes Stuffed Olives
Tomato and Cabbage Salad
Vanilla Ice Cream
with Chocolate Sauce
Coffee

This is a good menu for unexpected company. The chicken in this instance was canned, and canned peas were used from the emergency shelf. Olives and maraschino cherries were also used from said shelf. This dinner, therefore, required a minimum of preparation.

Today's Recipes

Chocolate Sauce—One square chocolate, two tablespoons butter, one cup sugar, one-half cup milk or water, one teaspoon vanilla. Melt chocolate and butter. Add sugar and milk. Boil three minutes. When cool add the vanilla. Pour over ice cream and top with a maraschino cherry.

Suggestions

Cake Layer Holder
Take a strip of paraffin paper or a strip about 15 inches long. After loosening edges of cake turn upside down on the paper. Then the layer may be easily placed on a plate. Turn plate over the cake and lift by the paper. Even the most tender and delicate cake may be handled with safety this way.

Fruit Drop Cookies—One and one-half cups flour, one-half teaspoon salt, one and one-half teaspoons baking powder, one-half cup fat (half butter), three-fourths cup brown sugar, two eggs, well beaten, four tablespoons milk, three-fourths cup sliced dates, one-half cup English or black walnuts, one teaspoon maple, one-half teaspoon vanilla. Sift flour, then measure. Resift with salt and baking powder. Cream butter and sugar thoroughly, add well beaten eggs and continue creaming until smooth and fluffy. Add dry ingredients and milk alternately, beginning and ending with dry ingredients. Add dates, nuts and flavoring with last few stirs. Drop by teaspoonfuls on slightly oiled baking sheet. Bake in a hot oven (400 degrees F.) 30 cookies.

A very satisfactory jelly bag may be made by putting a square of outing flannel in the colander and placing the colander over a deep kettle.

Don't try to economize by using last year's jar rubbers, even though they weren't used at all. The rubber has lost its elasticity and will not completely seal the cover, then the food will spoil—all for a few cents' economy.

Dietary Restrictions Responsible

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

The first requirement we put down for any normal diet was enough fuel. This means enough food. The first requirement of a diet concerns the actual amount of food you eat a day.

We pointed out yesterday that the unit of measurement of the fuel value of food is the calorie—you use up one calorie when you perform as much muscular exercise as consists in rising from a sitting position, shutting a door and sitting down again.

You take into the body one calorie when you eat a quarter of a soda cracker.

Now how many calories do you need a day?

Even when you sleep you are using up some calories. The mere act of breathing requires some muscular movements which result in the burning of calories. While asleep you use about half a calorie per pound of body weight an hour. Of if you weigh 150 pounds—you use 75 calories an hour. This is roughly 1,500 calories in the 24 hours.

Walking, even in the performance of the most ordinary activities, raises this very rapidly. Most of us use at least 3,000 calories a day. A football player or day laborer doubles this again.

I emphasize this question of the basic amount of food required because so much of modern advice on the subject of diet consists in admonitions towards dietary restrictions. Don't get fat. Don't eat too much. That is what everyone is harping on.

Now as a matter of fact as a result of all this talk there are many people in the world who are tired and constantly worn out because they do not have enough, to eat. Especially is this true of women whom vanity prompts to attempt to keep a figure far slimmer than their height demands.

Some extremists go even further and advocate starvation cures. One such man led a party of people into the mountains of Colorado last year to practice starvation for 40 days. Such exploits and ideas are regarded as jokes in some quarters as very sensible ideas in others. They are neither, because they do a great deal of harm and, as in the expedition referred to, lead even to the death of some of the enthusiasts.

There is no such thing as absolute starvation. If food is not taken in by mouth the body attacks its own tissues—fat and flesh—and burns them. Thus a vegetarian who goes on a starvation period is really putting himself on an exclusively meat diet.

For some people of course less food is required than for others. A reduction in the total amount of food consumed by many people is advisable. But the idea can easily be carried to extremes and in our generation there is much more danger of most people "taking too little" than too much food.

Loyalty To Friends Shows Stuff

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

LOYALTY to one's friends when they are in hard luck surely shows the stuff you are made of. They may prove ungrateful, humans being what they are, but what matters it, as long as you know you are true blue?

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I never fail to read your column, and 'Worried Juel's' letter interested me immensely. I want to tell her that if she truly loves her man she shouldn't weaken or give him up because he can't take her any more. There are too many girls who claim they love deeply, but when the man becomes down and 'broke' they have no use for him and give him the gate.

"I am also in my teens and have kept steady company with my 'beef' for a whole year, and yet he couldn't take me anywhere because he was down and out, with being ill, out of work, domestic troubles, and meeting continuous hard knocks, but I never failed him.

"That is just the time to prove your love, Juel, when he most needs you. My sweetheart has been man enough to almost beg me to give him up because he thought I might feel tired down or become unhappy, and I knew it would break his heart. It only made me love him the more and see how much he needed me. I'm happy that I didn't give him up, and I'd rather sit beside him for hours than to see the most popular moving picture.

"This has made him happy and urged him on, and I've been happier because of it.

"You can help him in lots of ways. Let him pay for his own shows and you pay for yours. Try to encourage him and be his inspiration. Show him that you, at least, have faith in him and think him not at fault. Try to understand him and why he isn't able to take you out.

"It is just for him to be jealous of that other boy. Why shouldn't he be? When a man loves he doesn't want to sit by and see someone with an extravagant display take his girl away. Wouldn't you be dreadfully jealous if some girl tried to vamp your sweetie away with a great show of what money could buy?

"Stick to the boy friend, Juel, if you truly love him, and when things go better you'll thank yourself for not being a weakling. Happiness is much more appreciated when hard to get.

WON BY WAITING.
A splendid letter from a fine little girl, dear. Thank you. Many persons older than Juel would do well to heed your message when trouble comes and lovers and husbands need faithful and loving support to meet it.

MARY P.: I should think people could easily verify or disprove the report that your boy friend was married if they wished to do so. Pay no attention to the rumor if you are convinced that it is untrue. From your letter I am sure he sounds like a good honest boy, and I would stick to him until he has those debts you speak of paid and can take you about more. I think you are very sensible to postpone marriage until you are a few years older. Glad you enjoy the column.

DAVID'S SWEETHEART: What can I say, dear? I am sorry your parents won't let your little boy friend visit you at home. Personally it seems unwise to me, but they know you better than I do, of course, and they have your welfare at heart. Girls in their early teens cannot depend on their love lasting, although occasionally it does. You say you'd do anything I say but you won't give one another up. Then you'll have to go on meeting on the sly, I suppose, but you'll have to be prepared to have your parents find out about it. And then what are you going to do and say?

You Can Buy Hair To Hide Locks

By GLADYS GLAD

It probably has not occurred to most women that long hair is bound to prove quite an expensive proposition.

With long hair, permanent waves will become more necessary. Shampooing will have to be more frequent. Marcel waves will be an added tax on your pocketbook. And hair dressing, being more difficult, will also add to your weekly beauty bill.

And will you look as pretty with your long tresses? Well, not on the beach at any rate. And you may find it really difficult to discover a coiffure that will give your head as smart a silhouette as did the short hair.

Undoubtedly, long tresses are not meant for the beaches. Hanging limply around the shoulders, long hair is neither attractive nor comfortable. The chic-looking girls who are able to enjoy the cool ocean breezes aren't the ones who have to pile a wad of hair under their bathing cap.

From what I have seen on the beaches, the bathers aren't going in strongly for the long hair fad.

And those who are, are buying their long hair and tucking it away in bureau drawers before they set off for a day at the seaside.

A number of people have shorn their hair since the hot weather will strike us. The heat takes most of the fervor from hair growing. "Buy your long hair" can be the answer to the problem of the girl or woman who must be fashionable, and yet wishes to be comfortable when swimming, playing tennis, golfing or enjoying any of the outdoor sports.

Short hair is not only more comfortable than long hair, but also lends itself best to styles of individuality. And by the use of extra hair pieces, your bob can be converted into the most artistic of coiffures for afternoon or evening wear. Moreover, it is possible to create more novel and striking coiffures by the use of extra hair pieces.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED
by Phil

Regardless of whether there is anything particular at stake, the Downtowners and Geyers, bitter rivals in softball, snap like a couple of wildcats whenever they play each other. There is probably no rivalry as keen as when these two ancient foes get together and an exciting game invariably results. Each team plays its collective head off to win and rarely is the margin of victory greater than one or two runs.

Geyers and the Downtowners met four times this season, one being an exhibition tilt, with the last nine coming out on top on three occasions. The first game went ten innings with the D. T. C. Club winning, 9 to 8. Geyers evened matters the next time, staving off a rally in the last of the ninth to win, 6 to 5. In a Fourth of July exhibition contest the Downtowners piled up an early lead and beat Geyers, 11 to 7.

The final game was played Monday night and was one for the books, the Downtowners rallying to count three runs in the last of the ninth and win, 11 to 9 in a riotous finish. It was a dramatic game if there ever was one and the fans should have gotten their money's worth—even if they didn't pay any admission to see it.

Neither team knew it at the time, but the three runs scored by Geyers in the first half of the eighth inning only tied up the score at 9 to 9, instead of putting them ahead by a one-run margin, as the scorebook indicated.

A subsequent check of the box score disclosed the Downtowners had chased seven runs across the plate instead of only six in their big third round. Eleven batters stepped to the plate in this hectic round before the third out was made but the run scored by Jimmie McCurran was overlooked in the summary.

As it turned out the mistake made no difference in the result because Sam Huston's homer in the last of the ninth drove two runs over the plate ahead of him, more than sufficient to win. It may have been just as well Sam smacked the round-tripper for otherwise had the error been discovered after the game there would have been plenty of arguments.

John "Bunnie" Purdom, manager of the D. T. C. Club team, who seldom plays himself, was the hero of the victory. The Downtowners were shy one player when the game was called so he stationed himself in right field to complete the lineup. Bunnie did not have a fielding chance in the way of fly balls (thank goodness) but he certainly made himself useful at bat. He personally scored three runs, hit a clean single in the third with the bases full and generally made himself troublesome to Geyers, getting on base on two other occasions on errors and once on a fielder's choice.

The manager-player of the Downtowners on other occasions three years ago came to the rescue of his team in a pinch. It was the last half of the ninth inning of the second game, between the Downtowners and the old Firemen's team with the city title at stake and the Firemen had one runner on edge. Runners were on second and third with two outs when Bunnie stepped to the plate in the role of a pinch-hitter. And he delivered in the crisis, lacing one of Lloyd Downey's pitches over third for a hit that scored two runners and gave his team the championship for that season.

The strongest all-star team that could be picked from National League players, if the selections were based on batting power alone, could be as follows: pitcher—Paul Boxwell (.423 average); catcher—Lou McCoy (.365); first baseman—Walter "Speed" Leonard (.551); second baseman—Joe Smittle (.464) or "Happy" Davis (.529); shortstop—Ruse (.493); third baseman—"Builder" Smith (.491); center field—"Stony" Fuller (.454); right field—Bob Yeakley (.425); left—Bill LeSourd (.421).

(These selections are based on the last batting averages available and we took the liberty of transferring Ruse from third base to shortstop.)

Statistics show there are now 25,000 miniature golf courses in the United States representing an investment of $125,000,000. Of this number 15,000 have sprung up since January. The craze is sweeping every part of the country and the popularity of baby golf is growing by leaps and bounds in Xenia and throughout the county.

LANGS BEAT WILMINGTON TEAM BEHIND GIBNEY'S PITCHING

Piling up twenty-three hits and as many runs, the Lang Chevrolet Co. softball team swamped the Irwin Auker Bits of Wilmington, 23 to 4 in a non-league game on the Wilmington diamond Tuesday night. Both teams used ten men and the contest was limited to seven innings.

Scoring in every inning but the fourth, Langs had their big round in the fifth, when they scored four runs, three on a double and a run in the fifth, tally being unearned.

Jamestown marked up a run in the third inning, two more in the seventh and another in the eighth.

Bogard, visiting pitcher, was also in fine form, striking out nine batters and allowing only nine hits. He also contributed two of his team's six bingles.

The batting of Gallagher and the fielding of Moorman featured for the winners.

Next Sunday Jamestown and the Xenia Merchants will open a three-game series, all games to be played on the Washington Park diamond here. The second game of the series will not be played, however, until September.

GRAHAM PAINTS AND GALLUPS PLAY TIE; KERSEY HITS HOMER

The Graham Paints and the Gallups, a Wilmington team, battled seven innings in a 1-1 pitchers' duel at Cox Field Tuesday evening in one of the best exhibitions of the softball sport seen here this season.

A home run by Kersey, his second hit of the game, gave the Painters their only score during the pastime, which was abbreviated to seven stanzas by mutual agreement before the game and which would have been interrupted by darkness anyway.

The visitors were only able to collect three hits off the puzzling delivery of Lloyd Downey. Paints' pitcher while singles by Hurel, Haverstick and Kersey, and Kersey's circuit smash, totalled the four hits obtained by the Xenians. The teams played with ten players.

The Paints, anxious to win their National League game with the Lang Chevrolets Friday night, are bemoaning the loss of Milburn, fielder and leading hitter, who has moved to Cincinnati.

REPORT FILM STAR ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 13.—Lina Basquette, actress and dancer and former wife of the late Sam Warner, motion picture producer, was near death today after attempting to commit suicide, it was reported by police.

The purported attempt of the dancer to end her life came after she had staged a gay party at her home. All of the guests but one had departed when she went into the bath room of her home and there drained the contents of a bottle of poison, police said.

Found writhing on the floor, the dancer sobbed brokenly that she wanted her baby. The child, Lita, her two-year-old daughter, figured in the news recently when the dancer married Peverell Marley, a film comedian. At that time it was reported she had placed the child in the custody of her father's relatives after a settlement had been made. She indignantly denied that she "had given her daughter away."

Physicians at the hospital where the dancer was taken reported that her recovery was doubtful.

GIRL MOTHER SEEKING DIVORCE AT FIFTEEN, LEARNING TO PLAY

By IONE QUINBY
Central Press Staff Writer

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—Dusky-eyed and her shoulders slightly stooped, Sarah Cohen, 15 years old, who never had a doll in her arms but who sang her own baby to sleep when 12, is being initiated for the first time in her life into the gay pastimes of childhood.

Although she is still waiting for the marriage she went through four years ago, when 11 years old, to be dissolved, and she has a beautiful three-year-old child dependent upon her, the days opening up before her are full of pleasant and interesting things.

School Days
Mr. W. W. Galloway and daughter, Rebecca and Dorothy have gone to Chicago, where the two girls will remain for a week's visit at the home of their uncle, Dr. Charles Galloway and family.

Mrs. Janette Eskridge, who is living at the home of her brother, Mr. Roll McLean in Dayton, was calling on friends here Sunday.

Charles R. Cohen, who married her, and from whom she is endeavoring to secure a divorce and money to support her child, brought her to America, where one year later, in California, she cradled a baby in her arms.

In telling the story of her married life, Sarah, who at 15 is just learning the carefree joys of childhood and the happiness of school days, will tell you:

"I had to do all the housework after my marriage, when my husband took me to live with his parents. There were eight in the family. Then he put me to work in his factory. All my life has been all work and no play. Before I went to the orphanage I worked in the fields of Jerusalem for my day's meals. After I was taken to the orphanage I washed dishes, scrubbed floors and worked in the garden. I never had a doll in my life or knew what it was to play."

Her ambition now is to learn some of the pastimes and games of children so that she may be a real playmate for her baby. The husband is manager of a silk undergarment factory in Chicago.

FLASH! She Swims to Conquer

READ THIS FIRST:

Kitty Wilmet, secretary to Ellery Goss, assists Gordon Platt, Goss' confidential man, in running down a "leak" in the offices; Altee makes violent love to Kitty, who flees to Sally Ayers. After meeting Boss Kelliher at a party given by Hilda, blond phone operator, she receives a note asking her to a secret breakfast with Gordon Platt. At Platt's request she gets to know Hattie Bridges, another of Goss' secretaries. At her house she is surprised to see Baby Ayers in company with Mrs. Bridges' bond salesman nephew—evidently there is a connection between Sally Ayers, Bridges and the stock market.

But the "connection" turns out to be harmless. The man is Joe Fortune, of whom Kitty has heard, long in love with Sally. Kitty reproaches herself with too much imagination. But that night, listing all possible suspects of the leak, she determines to be active, not passive in the work for Platt. At midnight she is asked to come to the telephone; she indignantly refuses on hearing that it is Kelliher who wants her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 17

"He said Mr. Kelliher, Miss." Kitty's face hardened. "Please tell him I'm in bed and will not be disturbed."

But she was disturbed, mightily. What could Mr. Kelliher want of her at midnight—or any other time?

Yielding to his self-reproachful pleadings, and mindful of her promise to Sally and Baby, Kitty agreed to spend Saturday afternoon with Altee. She debated long as to where she would see him; the parlor at the boarding house was unattractive and semi-public, but safe. To go for a ride in his car was private, anything but secure, if Altee again attempted strenuous love making. The natorium seemed to promise a reasonable privacy and assured safety. She agreed to meet him there, but she did not wear her racing suit. She chose a very full skirted woolen suit, feeling a difficult conversation would not be made less so by that too revealing silk covering.

Having made up her mind to hear him, she wasted no time in pretense. He waited for her at the foot of the stairs near which she had stood when the lights went out and he had stolen that first disturbing kiss.

"We can't sit here and talk," she said, simply, pointing to a bench. "I've lots to say, but I wish I could have a less public place!"

"I promised to see you," he grumbled. "How do you expect a fellow to go down on his knees and eat humble pie here?"

Kitty drew back, shocked. Was he going to treat his offense as a joke?

"I have no wish to see you on your knees!" She spoke a little tartly. "I did not seek this interview. I promised to see you."

"Don't I know it?" he responded, ruefully. "And to Baby! And maybe the small one didn't about take my head off! You sure got me in bad there."

Kitty did not answer. "It's hard to explain!" Altee floundered. "Of course I had had too much to drink. I didn't know what I was doing. I am just crazy about you. Can't you forgive a fellow?"

He did not look at her. "Why was Baby so cut up about it?" asked Kitty, curiously. "What is Baby to you?"

He grew white, then red, then white again. But his answer was explosive. "Not a thing," he cried, vehemently. "Not a thing in the world. She was just defending me because I'm an old friend."

Kitty looked him straight in the face. His eyes met hers, but they were veiled. "Am I authorized to say that to Baby?" she asked. "That you are nothing to her, she nothing to you?"

He gulped. "Of course!" he answered. "Of course!"

Well that was that. She had no other course than to believe him. But then, why, why? Why had Baby had hysterics? The "old friend" theory seemed hardly enough to account for her actions.

"Kitty, darling, please forgive me! Honestly, I didn't know what I was doing! I didn't mean to be offensive; I'm just head over heels in love with you, and—and—" He stammered off into silence.

"You are in love with me?" Kitty looked at him wonderingly. Had the man no sense of values? John Spurge had asked her to marry him, without a word of love—but she knew he loved her.

"Sure I'm in love with you! I love you to death! I'm crazy about you!"

"Oh, Kitty! What do you want. What can I do?"

Kitty didn't answer. "Are you going to tell Sally—Baby—what I said?" he asked miserably.

"Tell them what you said? Is anything you said a secret?" demanded Kitty incisively. "Don't you want me to tell them that you asked forgiveness for your incomprehensible conduct at the Kelliher's?"

"Yes, of course!" he muttered. "But—"

"But you don't want me to tell them you said you were in love with me? Is that it? Or don't you want me to tell Baby you said she was nothing to you?"

Kitty began to enjoy the conversation. She was evidently getting a sweet revenge. Altee was sore in heart; frank, free, decent, she was not accustomed to being insulted.

"I want you to tell them you have forgiven me!" he muttered. She paused on the steps of Sally's and Baby's home. "You can come up with me, if you like, and hear what I say."

Altee pulped, looked at her miserably. Then he gave her the surprise of her life.

"I—I want you to marry me!" he plucked out. "I want you—for my wife!"

"We can sit here and talk."

you! I can't get along without you!" His voice sounded sincere and his eyes were warm. But they had passed from warmth to white heat before.

"I just don't understand!" Kitty tried to be honest.

"What is there to be understood?" he asked. "You are beautiful enough to make any man fall in love with you! I did the first time I saw you! You know, I kissed you when the lights went out; then in the taxi—I'm crazy about you. Can't you like me a little?"

Kitty drew away. She had given him every chance. Her heart ached because she had liked and admired him. Hard as it was to admit, she was mistaken! He wanted her kisses, not her faith. The tears came to her eyes. Not to let him see she rose, suddenly, and plunged into the pool. She heard a stifled cry which sounded like a curse. Then he plunged in after her.

But Altee had no chance of catching her. She outswam him with ease. Not to make it evident to the few others in the great enclosure, she kept only about twenty feet ahead of him. She refused to hear his calls that he wanted to talk to her.

She swam three lengths of the pool, easily eluding him at the turns by diving and under water swimming, then drew herself out, near the high diving stand. As Altee followed, puffing, Kitty began to climb the ladder. Altee followed, his face dogged with resolution.

"Better not come up higher than you want to dive off!" she threw over her shoulder. She reached the top of the stand. Altee still pursued. She waited until his head showed at the top platform, then dropped into the air, arms spread out, legs close, toes pointed, back arched in the beautiful swallow dive that had so thrilled her new friends. As she came to the surface, swam to the side and pulled herself out, Altee climbed upon the ladder. Kitty disappeared up the stairs to the ladies' dressing room. Her tears were gone, but her heart sorrowed.

It was easy to elude Altee in the pool; but how to avoid him when dressed? He would wait for her in the lobby, of course. He'd probably dress as fast as he could to intercept her. She smiled a little and took her time, keeping him waiting half an hour. When she joined him in the lobby she was quite cool and outwardly indifferent.

But Altee was not. "Look here!" he cried. "I won't be put off so! I've got to have an answer. I've told you I'm sorry. I've apologized for my—my mistake. I've told you I love you. What more can I do?"

"Well, you might take me to Sally's!" smiled Kitty. "But I think we'll walk, if you don't mind!"

He stared. "You don't trust me?" he accused.

"I shan't dispute you."

"Oh, Kitty! What do you want. What can I do?"

Kitty didn't answer. "Are you going to tell Sally—Baby—what I said?" he asked miserably.

"Tell them what you said? Is anything you said a secret?" demanded Kitty incisively. "Don't you want me to tell them that you asked forgiveness for your incomprehensible conduct at the Kelliher's?"

office which Thomas had held for many years. This contest was also extremely close, Wolf receiving 2,918 votes as against 2,625 for Thomas.

Harold M. Van Pelt, present deputy treasurer, gained the nomination for county treasurer, defeating R. O. Copey, former Xenia Twp. justice of the peace, by a margin of 1,002 votes. The tabulation gave Van Pelt 3,263 and Copey 2,261.

Green County voters apparently did not follow the trend of the Seventh Congressional District—the Republican contest between Charles Brand, Urbana, present congressman, and Judge Harry G. Gram, Springfield, as they gave the Springfield aspirant for the nomination a majority of nearly 200 votes over Brand, who is believed to have won the nomination. Voters in this county gave Judge Gram 2,602 votes and Brand received 2,423.

Dr. R. L. Haines, Jamestown, was unopposed for coroner.

There were no local contests on the Democratic ticket but the Democrats nominated a full slate of candidates for the state senatorship and county offices by means of writing in the names on the ballot at the primary. This was the unopposed ticket.

State senator—James E. Ford, Chillicothe; state representative—George H. Thorne, Bellbrook; county commissioner—David E. Bradtke; county auditor (short and long term)—W. T. Naragon, mayor of Osborn; prosecuting attorney—Attorney George H. Smith; sheriff—Harry M. Fisher; recorder—R. E. Dunkel; treasurer—Ben Belden; coroner (short and long term)—William E. Jacobs, Xenia.

In the two Republican contests for the nomination for state offices, Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown, asking re-election, defeated his opponent, Edward J. Hummel, in Greene County by a more than a nine to one ratio, getting 3,715 votes against 414 for Hummel. Local Republicans gave Harry S. Day a substantial majority in the three-way contest for state treasurer, the vote being: Day, 1,990; Pauline Buckley, 1,289; Ross Ake, 1,101.

In Greene County, as was the case over the state, Democratic voters favored George White, of Marietta, for the gubernatorial nomination over Stephen M. Young, Cleveland, giving White 295 votes and Young, 144.

Robert J. Bulkley, Cleveland, who had a commanding plurality over four opponents for the nomination for United States senator, ran third in Greene County, receiving only seventy-seven votes. Chas. V. Troy led with 132, followed by William W. Durbin with 106, Bulkley with 77, James McSweeney with 36 and George S. Myers with 29.

Joe Ferguson, Lancaster, who landed the Democratic nomination for state treasurer over three opponents

The Theater

One of the major mysteries of the 1929-30 season along Broadway passes into history, officially unsolved, but its host will probably rise at intervals when there is mentioned the name of an entrancing young lady who has been presiding at the Imperial Theater.

The young lady is Mlle. Gina Malo. She arrived from France weeks ago to take the place of Lily Damita, the film celebrity, in the musical show "Sons of the Sea," when Lily was released to go on a visit to France before resuming her film work.

Gina arrived with much acclaim, fanfare of advance acclaim from the press, and a warm welcome from the audience.

GINA MALO

A little foreign star. Then something happened. A tiny whisper started on the Broadway breeze. It gathered volume... became a roar, then a bold assertion. Briefly it was the startling effect of a little Mlle. Gina Malo from Paris, none other than Mrs. Malo's daughter Janet of Cincinnati, O.

Not that it made a lot of difference whether Gina was Janet or not was Gina, but the gossipers cracked their lips over what they listed was a delicious hoax. They said Gina's French accent and manner were so perfect because she had been reared in a French convent. But they insisted she could be dispensed with both and still be the first class hij she turned out to be.

Neither Gina nor her sponsors, Messrs. Connolly and Swanstrom, have cared to make an official statement on the subject. Gina's title beauty, her swaying torso, her enchanting voice speak for themselves. And when "Sons of the Sea," with its raking comic, Jack Gabue, and its lovely Gina Malo, westward next month in the section of Cincinnati and the "ad." Its patrons will be enjoying themselves too much to worry about the mystery of Gina and her net.

The Shubert's made the season's new for the legitimate theater the naughty place, "Ladies First," and seventy-six-year-old David Belasco followed close upon

CEDARVILLE COLLEGE SEEKING FUND TO FINANCE OPERATION

Budget of expenses for Cedarville College in 1930-31 will amount to slightly more than $35,000, a quarterly bulletin of the college reveals. The college will be required to raise a rotary fund, over and above the income from endowment and tuition, of at least $15,000.

The drive for the rotary fund started in Cedarville July 10, the object being two-fold: first, to avoid a deficit on the budget for maintenance of the college next year; second, to enable President W. R. McChesney to conduct a campaign to obtain a building and endowment fund of $750,000 and to meet all expenses incurred in this campaign.

The latter fund of $750,000 is to be raised as follows: at least $300,000 must be raised as soon as possible, college officials say, for the endowment, elevating the present fund to a $543,000 figure. That sum would give the college complete recognition in the various standardizing associations. It is hoped to raise the needed $300,000 by June, 1931.

The next $150,000 of the $750,000 to be raised will be put into a combined chapel and administration building, both being badly needed. It is said. The present chapel is overcrowded. There is also a need for new offices for the president, the dean, the registrar, the treasurer and more room for student activities.

The next $200,000 will be added to the endowment fund to meet the needs of an increasing attendance in the student body. The final $100,000 would be used to finance erection of a dormitory for girls. College authorities hope to reach the complete quota by June, 1934.

BELLBROOK

The old argument between Bellbrook and Waynesville came to a close Sunday afternoon at Bellbrook when the home team completely overturned and forever blasted the last hope of the Quakers. The visitors loaded to the guards with players from Green, Montgomery and Warren Counties, made a pitiful showing when matched against Manager Zimmerman and his aggregation of star players. The score of 25 to 1 in favor of the homers, should be conclusive evidence that the visitors were clearly out-classed in every particular. They probably could win victories over Bobtown, Rippsville or Roxanna, but when it comes to playing such a team as Bellbrook, there is no comparison. The game which probably established a number of new records, began at 3 o'clock after "The Rev. Father Sidenstricker," (former collector of customs at the port of New York) had collected all the revenue available. The battle started with the four hundred and fifty pound battery composed of Guy McMichaels, the Gander-town wonder and the famous Goal John doing the delivering and receiving. The game on the part of the homers was well-played, and each, who took part deserves honorable mention for the masterful manner in which they performed at all angles throughout the game. The visitors who seemed to have lost heart after a few of McMichael's twisters passed over the plate unhurt, played a miserable game both at bat and in the field at times, it would seem difficult to determine whether they were playing golf or lawn tennis. An interesting feature of the contest was the great number of times the bases were filled by the homers and the scores of errors made by the visitors. Goal John who can always be depended upon to snatch a game from the burning, or knock a long one just for fun, whether needed or not, smashed out a record-breaker into center field, and crossed the plate for a home run several minutes before the ball was recovered. "Red" Crowl made hits and singles by the homers were as common as the old days when seven balls and four strikes were allowed the batter, and the "moundman" pitched the ball instead of throwing it. Manager Zimmerman is desirous of obtaining games with any good team in Greene or adjacent counties, but draws the line on all aggregations such as bored the spectators to death in last Sunday's farce.

THEY GAVE A new Thrill

THAT'S WHY THEY GOT THERE SO QUICKLY

A MEXICAN REVOLUTION LEFT HIM BROKE. JUST A FEW YEARS LATER HE WAS A HIGH-SALARIED MOVIE STAR.

FAST SUCCESS STORY NO. 14

RAMON NOVARRO

His Spanish forebears conquered Mexico . . . won the country in ten brief years. But Ramon alone conquered America, conquered Europe, and all points east . . . in scarcely more than a camera's flicker. For Ramon gave the world a thrill!

And that's the tale of another young conqueror, OLD GOLD cigarettes. New England surrendered in just two months. "You win, OLD GOLD!" said the Middle West. From coast-to-coast the victory spread. And OLD GOLD in just one year became the country's fastest growing cigarette. OLD GOLD, like Novarro, offered the world a brand new thrill. Finer tobaccos gave a mellower taste. Better tobaccos ended throat-scratch.

BETTER TOBACCOS

"NOT A COUGH IN A CARLOAD"

A la mode

PARIS sets the styles in women's dress for the world. London is the arbiter in matters of dress for men. But, New York and Chicago, Boston and San Francisco and hundreds of smaller cities and towns throughout the United States may know what are the latest styles even before they are shown in Paris.

A seeming paradox, but true. Merchants maintain representatives in Paris, London, Vienna and other European style centers who cable the latest news of the modes, and ship samples long before they are sold abroad. In America, the news is translated into advertisements and printed by local newspapers throughout the United States. And so, American women are able to dress in the latest styles in dress more accurately than the women of any other country on the face of the globe.
